HUNTINGTON AVENUE GROUNDS, June 29.—"Cinch second place" was the noise the bugs made when they rushed through the gates at the Taylor park this afternoon to see the first game of the series between the Red Legs of Boston and the Athletic of Charlestown.

This series promised to be the hottest set of games that has or will be seen in Boston this season for the two teams are fighting like demons for second place in the American League and both managers, Lake and Mack, are anxious to take these games.

At the start of to-day's game, the Red Sox by reason of good, hard playing had a lead of 14 points over their opponents, but this margin is but a short one when the teams are playing together.

The Red Sox had to go into the contest all tired out from the tedious railway journey from Washington. They landed in Boston only an hour before the game was started and did not get a minute's rest.

Connie Mack and his crew arrived early this morning and spent the whole morning in sweet rest for this afternoon's fray. Connie Mack reports that "everything is lovely" with his players and that all are in good condition.

TELLS DYING BOY'S STORY

The dying statement of Richard Walsh, who was shot and killed by Patrolman Herbert J. Bradley of Chelsea during an arrest on a charge of larceny, was given in the Chelsea Court to-day by his mother, Mrs. Nora Walsh. Bradley is being tried on a charge of manslaughter. Mrs. Walsh testified that at the hospital her son said to her:

"On the night of May 8 I was standing at the corner of Locust street and Spencer avenue when Patrolman McFeavitt came along. He said he would give me a dollar if I would drive a team from his father's store to the ticket agent. I started with the team and at the corner of Church and Vernon streets Bradley came within three feet of the team and said, 'Now I've got you,' and then shot me."

Mrs. Walsh said that her son in his sufferings kept asking, "Why did Bradley shoot me?"

The case is continued until to-morrow, because one of the witnesses, Frank Sears and Francis J. Hall, who were with Walsh when he was shot, are on trial in the Superior court on a charge of larceny, and the jury is out on their case.

Walsh was shot when Bradley was arresting three men. Bradley says that he called to Walsh to stop, but that he kept on driving. He fired to scare him, and evidence is introduced to show that when Bradley shot, Walsh, hunted from a wagon, getting in the path of the bullet.

Thos. Sears, brother of Louis Sears of the Walsh boy, corroborated Bradley's testimony.

NATIONAL LEAGUE GROUNDS, Philadelphia, June 29.—The Boston Doves and Billy Murray's Phillies met this afternoon for the first time for several weeks in Philadelphia. The Doves followed the local aggregation home from Boston, where to the great surprise of all the Philadelphia players, the Bean Town representatives managed to break even in the unfinished series.

This is the first chance the local bugs and baglines have had to get a peek at the new blood corraled by Manager Bowerman, and before the game the fans were busy sizing up the new players.

The weather was fine for a cracking good contest and the stands were filled when the umpire sent the boys on their nine inning or more race.

The Bostonians, for the time being, are without the services of their manager, Frank Bowerman being in New York.

A solemn bond of sympathy exists between the two clubs now fighting for pennant position, owing to the two sudden deaths which have deprived both clubs of their presidents—Dovey and Durham.

The flag on the home grounds, at half-mast in respect to the memory of George Dovey, was ordered half-masted for thirty more days to-day, owing to the death of Mr. Durham.

The players wore crepe on their arms, as befitting the occasion. There will be no game on Thursday next, the day set for the funeral, thus putting off the double-header which had been arranged for that date.

GREAT SALTON SEA WILL ALL DRY UP

LOS ANGELES, June 29.—According to report by the United States Geological Survey, the great Salton Sea will completely disappear through evaporation by 1925. The sea, which was formed by overflow from the Colorado river into a depression in the Imperial Valley, is about forty miles in length and in places fifteen miles wide.

YALE FIELD, New Haven, Ct., June 29.—Under ideal weather conditions Yale and Harvard clashed this afternoon for the second game of their annual series, Harvard having won three to two in eleven innings last Thursday at Cambridge. Harvard's nine came over from New London this morning.

Yale's brilliant commencement crowd marched en masse to the field, more than two thousand alumni parading around the diamond while the players were practising. Their costumes included everything from a Young Turk to a French chef, and the vaudeville stunts they pulled off on the diamond were a feature to the music.

More than 12,000 people, a record-breaking crowd, saw the game. The Yale management was compelled to stop selling tickets for standing room hours before the game began, because of fear of an overflow upon the field.

Captain Murphy and Currier declined to announce the pitchers till the game began. There were fairly brass bands in the parade, and the din they made was tremendous. The teams appeared on the field at 2:30 o'clock.

PRESIDENT OFF FOR NEW HAVEN

WASHINGTON, June 29.—President Taft, accompanied by Captain Archibald Butt and probably by Charlie Taft, leave Washington at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon for New Haven, where to-morrow the President will attend the Yale commencement exercises. The President will present diplomas to the graduating class and make a brief address.

INSPECT NEW POSTOFFICE.

To-night Mayor Hibbard and Postmaster Edward C. Mansfield, together with several hundred representative citizens, will inspect South Boston's new postoffice at Broadway and F street. Following the inspection there will be a banquet in Bethesda Hall. The new station will open with the beginning of the fiscal year, July 1.

BULLETS AND BOTTLES FLY AT EVICTION

LYNN, June 29.—Pistol shots, shouts and the crash of bottles made a tumult at No. 32 Harbor street to-day during the eviction from that address of Samuel Ratick, his wife and four children, that attracted a big crowd and caused much excitement. The shots were fired by Special Officer David B. Hodgkins who was guard for Constable Charles Titcomb and the latter's helper. The policeman says he did not fire at Ratick, but in the air.

Ratick, after being arrested by Policeman Barnum on the charge of assault, because it is claimed he threw milk bottles at the special officer, claimed at the police station that he had been hit by a bullet. He had an abrasion on his side which he claimed was evidence. As the police found no bullet hole in his clothing, they said this could not be so. He gave bail and will appear in court to-morrow.

Ratick is a shoeworker and has been unemployed several weeks. That is why, he says, he has not paid the $7.50 which Landlord Julius Michelson claims is due for rent. Constable Titcomb feared trouble when he went to serve ejection papers on the Ratick family and took Special Officer Hodgkins with him. Ratick met them at the door.

"Keep out—don't trespass in my house!" said Ratick.

Hodgkins, who was in citizens' clothes, pinned his police badge outside his coat and said: "I am an officer of the law; don't you offer any resistance."

Ratick finally retreated into the house and to the second floor, where it is claimed he threw two milk bottles at Hodgkins and made a move, it is alleged as if he was about to draw a gun. Then Hodgkins fired two shots to intimidate, he says, and not to hit the tenants. Ratick fled out of the house in the rear and was arrested by another policeman.

It is claimed that when the special officer and constable started to enter the house Ratick fired a pistol at Hodgkins, "If you try to come in I'll kill you!"

SHOOTS MAN; SAYS HE SLEW HUSBAND

NEW YORK, June 29.—Mrs. Louise La Bartis fired four bullets into Domenico Versaglio, while a throng of horror stricken shop employes witnessed the shooting. Versaglio was still alive when taken to the hospital, but his wounds are probably fatal. Mrs. La Bartis was arrested.

In explaining her act Mrs. L. Bartis declared that Versaglio, who pretended to be a friend of her husband, had murdered him a year ago and that she had appealed in vain to the police to punish the murderer.

LAWYERS WRANGLE IN COURT

Coakley and Hill Rebuked by Court Apologize and Trial Proceeds. Former Mayor Concludes His Testimony in Flagstone Case.

The examination of former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald at the trial of Michael J. Mitchell and Thomas F. Maher, who are charged with conspiracy to defraud the city out of $13,500, was finished shortly after 1 o'clock this afternoon. Mr. Fitzgerald was told to remain in attendance, as District-Attorney Hill migh wish to recall him in rebuttal.

The former mayor had been on the stand since the opening of court this morning, when he resumed testifying where he left off last evening. The former mayor failed to recall specific acts in connection with the flagstone contract, and could not even recollect his testimony regarding it before the Grand Jury.

A reference to Mr. Fitzgerald's possible candidacy for mayor of Boston was made indirectly by the witness himself. When District Attorney Hill remarked to Mr. Fitzgerald that he "didn't have the job" of mayor now, the former mayor remarked suggestively, "Not just now." Lawyer Coakley suggested, however, that Fitzgerald might be in again.

It was expected that the case of prosecution would close this afternoon. It had not been decided whether or not the defendants would be placed on the stand.

Hot Clash of Counsel.

Just before noon, while Mr. Fitzgerald was on the stand, District Attorney Hill and Lawyer Daniel H. Coakley for the defence had a hot clash of words, in which they shouted the name at each other half a dozen times so vehemently that their words rang throughout the courthouse. The two men faced each other and they were pale with excitement. Judge Sanderson rebuked them, saying:

"This is most unseemly conduct. I am greatly surprised. I do not want anything like this to occur again in this trial."

The district attorney and the lawyer apologized to the Court and the trial was resumed. The courtroom was jammed and many of those present thought for a time that the two men were about to come to blows.

Signed $68,000,000 Contracts.

The former Mayor said that he had "no recollection" of the Mitchell-Maher contract by which the city agreed to buy flagstone at, it is alleged, twice what had been paid for it previously. While he was Mayor, Mr. Fitzgerald said he had signed contracts for $68,000,000 upon the advice of men connected with his office, and he only consulted the heads of departments in about 10 per cent. of the cases.

In answer to a question from District-Attorney Hill Mr. Fitzgerald stated that outside of the present case he had not noticed that his memory had failed within the last year and a half. He could not remember questions put to him before the grand jury by the late District-Attorney Moran, nor his answers, even after they had been read from the minutes of that body. The best the former Mayor could do in recalling his testimony was "a night dream" about the subject upon which he was questioned.

Fitzgerald Again on Stand.

Former Mayor Fitzgerald resumed the witness stand at 2:30 o'clock and was questioned by District Attorney Hill.

Q.—Have you thought the Mitchell-Maher contract over, since last night? A.—Yes.

Q.—Have you any further recollection than you had yesterday? A.—No.

Q.—Is it the practice of your office to get information from men attached to your office before signing contracts without advertising? A.—About ninety per cent. of the time.

Q.—The other ten per cent. of the time do you go to the heads of departments for information? A.—About that per cent. While I was Mayor I signed $68,000,000 worth of contracts.

DREAM ARRIVES AT YALE IN TIME FOR GAME TO-DAY.

Manager Lake and his Red Sox players arrived at the Back Bay station just before 2 o'clock, and all hands went immediately to the ball grounds, where they put on their uniforms and started in practicing. Everybody was in good condition except Lou Bessler, who injured his hand fumbling after a fly ball at Washington yesterday. He will be out of the game for several days.

The Yankees were confident that they would take a game from Yale as it was to be played with the Athletics. It is said that there would be a double-header to-morrow.

ALUMNI DAY IS CLIMAX OF YALE FETES

NEW HAVEN, Ct., June 29.—The climax of the commencement festival at Yale was reached to-day with "alumni day," and hundreds of visitors thronged the campus. The great size of modern graduating classes is struck home with particular emphasis by the fact that the 2,000 seats have been engaged in blocks by the reunion classes which will gather to-morrow upon the baseball field.

The sporting events to-morrow, with their fantastic processional features, have become almost as much of a show as the intercollegiate competition.

To-night twenty-two classes will have their reunion dinners. Most of them will disperse at 8 o'clock in the morning, more noisy than edifying to quiet New Haven citizens. This year, more than usual, the alumni will linger over until the ceremony to-morrow, drawn by the attraction of the President Taft is expected some time to-night or early to-morrow.

At the meeting of the Yale alumni to-day President Hadley delivered his report for the year. He discussed the diminution in study of Greek and its effect on the possibility of combining modern studies with the old-fashioned requirements of hard work, the considerations which should govern the choice of professors and the possibility of introducing honor courses like those of Oxford or Cambridge into American colleges.

Cornelius Vanderbilt, '05, to-day gave $10,000 to start a fund in memory of Dean Henry P. Wright of Yale, who retires this year after twenty-five years of service. A committee was appointed to take charge of the receipt of the fund. Mr. Vanderbilt was made a member.

STRONG ON CLOTHES BUT SHY ON CASH

Jennie Havier and Claire Renaudeau, two handsomely gowned young women from Paris, cabin passengers on the Red Star liner Menominga, from Antwerp, were held by immigration inspectors when the steamer docked. One of them had only $2 and the other possessed the sum of $12, which she showed.

In view of these facts and that they asserted they came over to visit a young man friend, it was thought their case might be investigated some.

WOMAN FOUND STRANGLED IN A HOTEL ROOM

A woman whose identity has not yet been positively established was found dead in a room in the Hotel Imperial in Brighton to-day. She had been strangled with a towel and it is believed to be case of suicide by hanging.

On the table in the room was found a card on one side of which was printed "Mrs. Walter C. Sprague." The word "Mrs." had been marked out with a lead pencil. On the other side of the card was written:

"My body will be found in the water. Notify Walter C. Sprague at No. 823 Beaver street, Dorchester, care of a Mr. Allen."

It is said that a woman resembling the one found dead was seen walking near a reservoir last night and finally asked a man to direct her to a hotel.

It is supposed that the woman went to the reservoir intending to drown herself and changed her mind.

No police bulletin has yet been issued on the death at police headquarters.

JAIL AND FINE FOR CHAUFFEUR

Joseph Barbose of Lexington, chauffeur for J. Reed Whipple, the wealthy hotel man, was sentenced to serve thirty days in the House of Correction at East Cambridge and fined $50 for refusing to stop his machine when cautioned by a police officer, by Judge Charles Almy to-day. Barbose's attorney, Francis Hurlbut, Jr., entered an appeal for him.

Barbose was arraigned on three counts for not heeding a request to stop when cautioned by a police officer and for reckless driving. Judge Almy placed the overspeeding charge on file.

In imposing sentence, Judge Almy said: "If I am to believe the five government witnesses, this man ought to be ruled out and never permitted to operate an automobile again."

Barbose was arrested by Sergeant John Canny of the North Cambridge police station on Sunday afternoon, June 20, while racing with another automobile.

INSPECT PRISON SHIPS.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., June 29.—The Massachusetts Prison Commission, accompanied by Warden Scott of the New Hampshire State prison and several prominent prison officials from Maine and Vermont, to-day inspected the government prison ships Topeka and Southery and also the United States naval prison here.

MUSIC TUTOR SAYS HE WED THROUGH FEAR

The petition of Frederick J. Lamb, a music teacher of No. 159A Tremont street, well known in Boston and Worcester, asking that his marriage to Jessica A. Shaw, a school teacher, be annulled, was taken under advisement by Judge Bell in the divorce session to-day. Mrs. Lamb and her baby, Dorothy, which came into fame by being left at the Hotel Commonwealth last Winter as security for the payment of a bill, were in court, but Mrs. Lamb did not take the stand in her own behalf. She wept several times during the testimony.

Lamb says that the marriage took place while he was under duress, by the fact that he had been arrested on a charge made by Miss Shaw. They were married by Lewis Grossman, the constable who made the arrest.

Lamb said that he went away and two months later, when he returned to Boston he was met at the North Station by Mrs. Lamb and Mr. Shaw, her father. Mr. Shaw asked him to come and live with his daughter and Lamb refused. Lamb said that he told him that was not the letter where he went she would follow him.

Story of Love Letters.

Arthur J. Hubbard, a teacher of the voice, whose offices were near Lamb's, was next called. He told of seeing three letters addressed to Lamb, two or which were unsigned and one signed by Miss Shaw. All contained protestations of love, some of which Mr. Hubbard read audibly.

They told how the writer had seen and admired Lamb, but that she knew he would not care for her, and he was such a fine gentleman. The signed letter, Mr. Hubbard said, implored Lamb to recognize Miss Shaw and went on to say that she could not exist unless he did.

Constable Grossman told of going to Lamb with the warrant for his arrest, which Mr. Shaw had secured. He said that after the arrest she asked him not to push the case further. He said that after this, Lamb, Miss Shaw and he went to his office, where he married them. This ended the testimony.

Married Two Years Ago.

The Lambs were married on July 16, 1907. Her child, Dorothy, is about nineteen months old. Lamb lives at No. 207 Hemenway street. Mrs. Lamb was at one time a school teacher, and for a while in Jamaica Plain and Charlestown.

In one of the letters which Miss Shaw wrote to him and signed, she told of a $25,000 legacy which had been taken out of her hands by her father on the ground that she was incapable of taking care of it. This was the letter which Lamb says he answered, and after that he and Miss Shaw went out two or three times a week together.

HOTEL ESSEX OWNER ADOPTS BELL BOY

Despatches from San Francisco to-day contain the announcement that a bell boy in the St. Francis Hotel is about to be adopted by F. A. Hammond, owner of the Hotel Essex in this city. Mr. Hammond is well advanced in years and extremely fond of children. He left the Essex, where he has made his home for some time, several days ago to tour the world. He started by way of the continent and finally arrived in San Francisco. It was there that the bell boy attracted his attention.

Mr. Hammond and his prospective heir have left the St. Francis Hotel for an extended tour of the coast. Later a trip to Boston will be made.

12 TORPEDO BOATS SLIP INTO HARBOR

A flotilla of twelve torpedo boats slipped into Boston Harbor to-day and steamed swiftly up to the Charlestown Navy Yard, where they came to anchor. They are the advance guard of a great squadron of twenty-one of Uncle Sam's staunchest warships that will come here to celebrate the nation's birthday with the thunder of their guns.

The torpedo boats were not expected until Thursday, but they steamed here from Provincetown to-day. They are the Thornton, Worden, Reading, Blakeley, Shubrick, McDonough, Tingey, Wilkes, Stockton, Dupont, Porter and Biddle.

The Panther and the third-class cruiser Montgomery came here yesterday. The battleship Illinois left Philadelphia to-day for the Charlestown Navy Yard, where $2,000,000 in repairs and alterations are to be put on her making her a completely modern battleship. The Maine is required for this, the greatest task ever attempted at Charlestown in the last 50 years.

The cruiser Prairie came here a day or so ago to transport back to Philadelphia the "skeleton crew," now preserves are called, who are manning the Illinois on her run here from that port. They were drafted for the purpose from the ships at the navy yard there.

On Friday the battleships of the first division, Rear Admiral Reginald F. Schroeder's flagship, the Vermont, Kansas and Louisiana, with the armed cruisers Chester, Birmingham and Salem, will steam into the harbor. Many of the torpedo boats will require minor repairs.

On the Fourth of July it is said that so many of the men on these war vessels are to be granted leave that only shore leave will be granted for the day and Boston will fairly swarm with blue jackets.

TO-DAY'S CABLE NEWS

Drunkard and Paralytic, In Killarney Boat Crew.

CORK—A coroner's jury which has been investigating the accident on the Lower Lake at Killarney last Wednesday, by which five Americans and four English tourists and two boatmen lost their lives, has brought in a verdict ascribing the disaster to the tempestuous weather. Nobody was held blameable.

Nevertheless it was admitted that one of the crew was over seventy years of age and was partially paralyzed, another was a notorious drunkard, and one of the surviving boatmen expressed the opinion that if the crew consisted of four good men the accident would not have happened.

$500,000 for a Rembrandt.

LONDON—An unconfirmed statement is made, though it is believed in art circles, that the Marquis of Lansdowne has followed the example of the Duke of Norfolk in selling a masterpiece out of the family. This is Rembrandt's picture, "The Mill," painted in 1690, which depicts the sunset rays that take coal veiled by a lonely windmill upon a ruined bastion. The picture has had various owners, but has been in the possession of the Lansdowne family at their county seat, Bowood, Wiltshire, for a century. They bought it originally for $90 guineas ($4,200). The rumor mentions a sum approaching $500,000 as the price it has now fetched.

More Opera Singers Signed.

GOLF CADDY RESCUES DROWNING SOLDIER

NEWPORT, R. I., June 29.—Private James Cleobolt of the Fifth Coast Artillery company of Fort Adams owes his life to a caddy of the Newport Golf Club. Cleobolt walked into the home of Policeman Timothy J. Harrington and asked for his son, William C. Harrington, twenty years of age.

"My boy is out," the officer replied. "What can I do for you?"

"Nothing very much, but I came from the post to thank him and you for his saving my life from drowning last Saturday night." For the first time the parents of the boy heard the story of the rescue. He waited and thanked the lad.

SUFFRAGETTE ARMY TO RAID THE COMMONS

LONDON, June 29—The militant suffragettes will make a determined effort to storm the House of Commons to-night in an endeavor to force Premier Asquith to receive their deputation, which he has steadfastly refused to do.

The police are taking extraordinary precautions to prevent a raid, in addition to issuing a public warning against the danger of assembling in the parliament square.

No fewer than 3,000 policemen will be on duty, while all leave has been suspended and thousands of police reserves will be in readiness if required.

A strong body of police guard all the streets converging on the House of Commons, and large bodies, foot and mounted, are held in reserve at various strategic points. In fact, every element of military and police power, short of actually using Maxims, are being employed by the police.

The suffragettes, on the other hand, are pending a deaf ear to the secret of their arrangements to succeed in their undertaking. They confidently expect the greatest outturning of militant suffragettes London has yet seen.

Some of the women have gone to the extent of declaring that they are willing to die for the cause.

Forbes Robertson, the actor, who supports the suffragette movement, takes a gloomy view of to-night's program, saying:

"I fear something terrible is going to happen. I look forward to it with the greatest anxiety. The most painful feature is that the authorities do not understand that they cannot stop this movement. No persecution or feeble explanations is the Commons, nothing can stop it. It is going on till women get the vote."

Mrs. Pankhurst, while refusing to reveal the plans of the demonstrations, is confident of victory. In an enthusiastic speech she announced that the women would "bend or break" Asquith.

CLAIRE EDWARDS, WHO WAS TRAINED FOR PRIZE-WINNER

NEW YORK, June 29.—If you want a baby girl to grow up perfect, according to physical requirements, all you need to do is to begin training her from infancy. This is the advice of a mother who knows.

Mrs. Edith L. Edwards of Napa, Cal., the mother of Margaret Claire Edwards, the 11-year-old girl who took first prize before the New York Physical Culture Society, told to-day how she began growing the youngster from nursery days.

"My daughter eats but one meal a day. She seldom touches meat, and never tastes candy."

Little Miss Edwards, who lacks three months of being twelve years old, is 5 feet 1½ inches tall, and weighs 106 pounds. Her physical measurements are: Neck, 11½ inches; arm, 9; forearm, 8½; wrist, 6; elbow, 8¾; chest, normal, 31; contracted, 27½; expanded, 32½; bust, 32; waist, 23; hips, 34; thigh, 20; knee, 13½; ankle, 8.

Bernard Macfadden, who was one of the judges of the contest, has this to say about the little Wonder Girl from California:

"The strength and endurance of this young girl are simply wonderful. She has been raised out of doors and spends a good part of her time riding horseback. She grooms her horse and takes entire care of it. Three years ago she was pronounced to be one of the most perfectly developed children ever seen in California. She can bend or reach any muscle in her body at will. She has helped to drill a large class of school children and led the physical culture demonstration and exercises before the New York County Institute for the last two years.

"I must say she is a marvel, and I am glad that after a world-wide hunt for the most perfectly developed girl we have found her in the land of sunshine and flowers."

McAULIFFE IS HELD FOR DEATH OF McASH

John J. McAuliffe, 27 years old, was arraigned in Municipal court to-day and held without bail for the grand jury on a charge of having killed John McAsh of No. 5 Garland street. The knife penetrated McAsh's heart. The trouble occurred in an alley near the Garland street house. Two men, one of whom the police say was McAuliffe, were fighting. A woman sitting on the steps spoke to them and then called two men from the house, one of whom was McAsh, and he went toward the fighters, demanding an explanation. It was then that he received the knife thrust, the police say.

McAuliffe's picture and record are in the rogue's gallery.

ALARM CLOCK, 50c

FIREMEN BEAT POLICEMEN IN A BALL GAME

By far the greatest attraction of the picnic and field day held to-day by members of the Church of the Assumption of East Boston at Point of Pines was the baseball match between teams composed of the Boston police and fire departments. The foremen, also, drew an interesting but one-sided game, the score of which was 12 to 4.

The game was played for all there was in it, for the BOSTON AMERICAN had offered as a prize to the winning team a complete outfit for a baseball nine—uniforms, balls, bats, gloves, masks and protectors. A big crowd gathered to see, and the rooters for both sides made lots of noise as they urged their champions on to victory.

There were all sorts of sports at Point of Pines—swings, merry-go-rounds, games for the children, dancing for others and a great program of athletic sports for the men.

In addition to this there were trotting races. Nellie King, owned by J. Meyer of South Boston, won one race, and John Agan, owned by Michael J. Hurley, won another. There was a road race of automobiles with eight starters. W. Weisman was first, Thomas Lilley second, Arthur Brocker third and Francis Warren fourth.

The committee was headed by Patrick J. Kennedy, who was assisted by Thomas Arthur, former Councilman John A. Conry, former Representative John F. Sullivan, Patrick A. Lang, William J. Donovan, Thomas McColgan, former Representative William J. Corbett, Peter Harkins, former Representative John J. Dougan, Henry Wilson, former Councilman Joseph F. Carter, Patrick Flanagan, George H. Richardson, Aloysius F. Sullivan, Representative Michael H. Fitzgerald, Michael Barry, former Representative W. F. Donovan, Edward Flaan, George Desmark, John M. Sheridan and Stephen Wesley.

The sports were in charge of Joseph F. Kennedy, Thomas G. McKinney, Jr., William Mitchell, Edward Yoke, Harry Keating Leary, Frank Lyons, Thomas Smiddy, Councilman Brophy, Jeremiah Curtin, Thomas Cumiskey, Daniel Rowan, George Storin, Stephen Miller, Thomas Keefe, George Fleeling, Thomas Plunkett and Dr. Richard C. 75-FOOT FLAG IN DREAMWOLD BRIDE'S HONOR

When fair Marion Lawson, daughter of Thomas W. Lawson, becomes the bride of James F. Lord of Chicago at glorious Dreamwold, Thomas Lawson's estate on the South shore, tomorrow, she will be surrounded by as notable a gathering of Boston smart set as has been seen at any wedding in this month of dainty brides.

It will be the prominence of the guests be the only notable feature of the nuptials, for sentimental and romantic Thomas W. Lawson has taxed his great wizardship to make the occasion one that will be remembered.

Not the least of the events on the Lawson domain will be the unfurling of the largest American flag in the world, which Miss Lawson and her bridesmaids will hoist to the pride. The enormous flag is 75 feet long, 50 feet wide, weighs 175 pounds, is of silk, and has 38 stars—four feet wide. Hung from the top of a six-story building this flag would trail in the breeze to within 20 feet of the top of Boston's streets. It will be flown from a 175 foot mast. The ceremony will be solemnized in the romantic and beautiful Japanese tea house, a giant apple tree, with bank upon bank of bright glowing rambler roses defining the landscape as far as the eye can see, and rustic seats scarcely.

Following the ceremony the open will of the wedding will be changed should the course have to be changed should the weather prove inclement, but preparations have been made to meet this emergency in Dreamwold Hall. The wedding inscription will be at freeze on the broad frieze.

Miss Lawson will be married at the ceremony by her three sisters, Miss Ines Lawson, Miss Mercedes Lawson and Miss "Bunny." Arnold Lawson and Mr. Booth of Chicago will attend the groom. The bride will be given in marriage by her father. The Rev. John Wesley Cuthbert of Winchester will officiate.

The first caller was the Rev. Charles F. Aked, pastor of the Rockefeller's New York church. The minister was kept in conference with the Standard Oil Company's founder for nearly two hours.

MOTHER OF ELSIE SIGEL NOW INSANE

NEW YORK, June 29.—Mrs. Paul Sigel, the mother of the murdered Elsie Sigel has been driven hopelessly insane it was learned to-day as a result of the brain-turning shock she received when she first learned that her missing daughter was dead, killed by the hand of a "Mission" Chinaman. The girl's mother was unable to attend the quiet burial service in Woodlawn, and it is said rapidly lost all sense of what had happened. She has grown steadily worse in the sanitarium, and to-day was completely a lunatic.

Leon Ling, wanted for the murder of Elsie Sigel, will be under arrest before the close of another day if the police can be placed in the latest police information. He has been seen in Hackensack and Passaic, N. J., within the last forty-eight hours, it is declared, and at midnight a small army of detectives, commanded by Inspector McCafferty, had formed a dragnet in all outlying New Jersey towns that will make escape almost impossible.

This information, the most definite of any since the young Chinaman dropped out of sight June 10, was brought to police headquarters by members of his own race who are anxious to receive the reward of $3,000 offered for his arrest.

Quan Wick Nom, the old interpreter, whose services have already been of inestimable value, appeared after a conference of some two days.

The decision to assign every detective not already at work on the case to the New Jersey end was reached after a conference between Mr. Bingham, Deputy Commissioner Woods, Inspector McCafferty and Captain Carey. Inspector McCafferty announced that he would take personal charge of the search.

During the day notices were written in Chinese and posted in the laundries throughout Greater New York warning the Chinese workers of the dangers they incurred in making the acquaintance of white women. A translation of the warning reads:

Warn Against Whites.

Keep the counsel of your own people. Do not associate with white women or girls. Let one man in a Chinese laundry be assigned to deal with all white families with whom it is necessary to transact matters of business. Any violation of this order will be perilous.

The warning is said to have been issued as the result of a conference between the heads of the several Chinese companies which control the majority of the laundries in New York and Brooklyn.

No less interesting than the new clews are the facts that the police have developed to date. These were made known by Inspector McCafferty before he had received the information that makes the capture of the Chinaman at an early date possible.

Here was Inspector McCafferty's statement:

"We know that Elsie Sigel was murdered between 10 o'clock a. m. and noon in Leon Ling's room at No. 782 Eighth avenue. A policeman saw the girl enter the stairway that leads to the Chinaman's room at 10 o'clock. Leon Ling has confessed that the crime was committed about noon and that the girl's body was immediately placed in the trunk.

How Trunk Was Hid.

"It can be positively asserted that within an hour the trunk was shipped to Newark, and we hope before many hours to have the name of the expressman who carried it away. There is evidence that this part of the ruse to avert suspicion had been carefully planned.

"The trunk was not taken directly to the restaurant of Ling Bing, but was checked either at one of the ferries or at the Newark depot for the ten hours necessary for the murderer to go to Washington and send the telegram.

"To accomplish this it was necessary for him to remain in Washington less than an hour or we would have found that there are trains that made it possible to get back shortly after midnight when he appeared at Ed Bing's place in Market street, Newark, and asked that the trunk be taken care of for him indefinitely.

Trace Slayer's Moves.

"When Ling returned to Newark in the afternoon of June 10 and employed James Halstead, the Newark cabman to take the trunk back to the Eighth avenue house, another mystery is revealed which we have been unable to fathom.

"It cannot be questioned, however, that the girl's slayer was present each time the trunk was moved. We have irrefutable evidence to establish these facts up to the time the cab arrived at its destination in New York during the afternoon after the crime was committed. What the young Chinaman's next move was we have been unable to ascertain.

"I do not believe the Chinaman, even with all his cunning, can get away. The only vessel on which he could have departed is due to arrive in Yokohama July 14, and we have cabled the authorities at that port to make a thorough search.

Expressman Found.

"We are not conducting this search with the idea that Leon Ling had accomplices."

During the night an expressman whose name was not revealed called at the West Forty-seventh street police station and said of having carried a trunk from No. 780 Eighth avenue to the laundry of Wah Lee, on One Hundred and Sixth street, June 9.

He was rushed to headquarters in charge of Lieut. John Foster and turned over to Captain Carey. The expressman is said to have exhibited carbon copies of the receipt he gave for the charges collected from a Chinaman, although his story does not agree with other information in the possession of the police. When the laundry was visited it was found to be deserted.

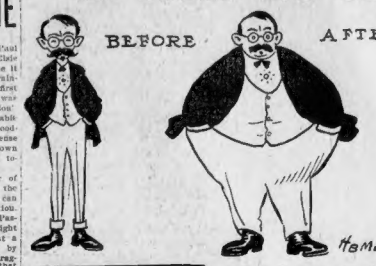
HARRIMAN ORDERED TO GET FAT---HOW? WHY, ON BREAD AND BEER



E. H. Harriman, and artist's impression of the "Before and After" of his beer diet.

SEMMERING, Austria, June 29.—E. H. Harriman has been told that his nutrition lies in getting fat. He must put on flesh.

Professor Strnsempell made a thorough examination of the financier to-day and came to the conclusion that he is undernourished.

Mr. Harriman sipped the scales at 144 pounds, and the professor after lingering the Harriman ribs, announced that his patient must take fattening medicine.

"Plenty of cereals, large quantities of milk, raw eggs and beer, especially malt beer," was the Strnsempell prescription.

Mr. Harriman, on receiving this advice, laughed and exclaimed: "Three cheers for bread and beer."

He will remain at Semmering until July 15 practicing this fattening diet, and then go to Bandasie to take radium baths.

LIKE ROCKEFELLER, HIS RICHES FAIL TO BRING HEALTH

NEW YORK, June 29.—When E. H. Harriman was congratulated last year upon having reached his sixtieth birthday he said, among other things: "I grow older, I am beginning to think more about my fellow-men."

He might have added: "And I am beginning to think more about myself." For that is what he is doing now—exclusively. He is thinking altogether about his health.

He has discovered that, although he has amassed perhaps $100,000,000 and can control absolutely any amount of dollars he wants to, as he controls the railroads of the United States, there is one thing he can't begin to control—that is his physical condition. He has found, just as John D. Rockefeller found a few years back, that a multi-millionaire is precisely like any other bit of human machinery. He runs down and wears out. And his millions don't put spring into his step or vigor into his body.

Hence this trip to Europe by Mr. Harriman—and also various other expeditions in search of health which he has made in the last couple of years. It is just beginning to be realized by his friends that he has been as keen about his own welfare recently as he has been eager after railroads.

It has been a more puzzling problem for him, too. He could tell what was the matter with a 1,000-mile line of track after a dying trip over it. But he couldn't learn what was the matter with himself after months of close study and the aid of all sorts of medical specialists. He has been sort of a technical medical problem for the doctors. They are stumped over him.

He has been sort of a stock market barometer also. When reports have been spread that he was in bad health, down went the securities of his railroads. When he was reported as improved, up moved the prices. Unscrupulous Wall Street operators have raided upon this, and have gone so far once or twice as to circulate rumors of his death to depress certain stocks.

CHASE-CHACES IN REUNION TO-MORROW

The tenth annual reunion of the Chase-Chase Family Association will be held at the Vendome to-morrow. The program includes an address of welcome by the Rev. Lucius H. Hermandale, D. D., of Boston; address by the president, John C. Chase of Derry, N. H.; a talk on "The Early History of Aquilla Chase, Emigrant," by William E. Gould of Cambridge; an address by the Rev. George A. Crawford, D.D., United States navy; [illegible] poem, by Mrs. Clara Rose Dudley of Somerville, and musical selections by Isaac Chase of Cambridge, violinist, and Master Frank Croft Chase of Malden, violinist. Dinner will be served at 1 o'clock, and followed by short addresses by invited guests and members of the Chase-Chace family, recitations and music.

WELL, LET'S ALL GET ON THE WATER CART!

CHICAGO, June 29.—At a meeting in Willard Hall of the committees working for the temperance and law enforcement parade on September 25, it was decided that the secretary, Dr. H. H. Newton, should write to Emperor William of Germany for an expression of his approval of the enterprise.

"William Howard Taft has turned his glass upside down," declared the Rev. E. L. Williams of the Avondale Methodist Church. "Rudyard Kipling has sworn off. Dr. Eliot of Harvard has proclaimed for total abstinence and now Emperor William has cut out the hard stuff."

Major Gen. Frederick Funston will lead the parade, which is expected to be 100,000 strong.

HACKETT OF WARD 21 IN THE FIELD EARLY

"There's nothing like being an early bird," says Councilman William N. Hackett of Ward 21, who is responsible for the first crop of political literature for 1909 and is the first candidate to open an active campaign for a seat in the legislature in 1910. It is going to be a hard fight, and a merry one and Councilman Hackett figures that he will have a lap on his competitors by laying his plans early in the Summer. Besides Councilman Hackett, Councilman Dallinarne and Melus, the other Ward 21 representatives in the lower branch of the city council are going to try for a seat in the House of Representatives and since both have made creditable records a sharp contest is assured.

LEXINGTON DEACON DIES AT AGE OF 92

The sudden death of William Tucker, for many years deacon of the First Baptist Church in Lexington, yesterday morning, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Henry Rice, at Milton, was the first one in the family circle for 67 years, notwithstanding that at the time of his death his wife, three children, four grandchildren and nine great grandchildren made his declining years happy.

Mr. Tucker was born in Hanniker, N. H., 92 years ago, and came of a family noted for longevity. The funeral will be held at the home of his daughter Thursday afternoon.

$15 FINE PAID BY VANDERBILT

PAWTUCKET, June 29.—Harold Vanderbilt, who was acquitted by a Boston jury last March on the charge of recklessly driving his automobile while on way from a Back Bay club to the North Terminal Station in that city, was fined $10 and costs for overspeeding in this city to-day. When he was arraigned in a lower Boston court on this charge, and also of driving an automobile without lighted lamps, he pleaded not guilty to the first charge and admitted the truth of the latter one. He paid a $10 fine on the lamp charge and appealed a fine for overspeeding. A jury in the Superior Court acquitted him.

Yesterday he was on the way from Harvard University, where he is a student, to Cos Cob, the home of his mother, Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, and when he got on Broadway, this city, began to drive his auto. Policeman Wadsworth says, at a speed of from thirty to forty miles an hour. Mr. Vanderbilt was escorted to the police station. Judge Tuck was sent for and held a special session to hear the case. Mr. Vanderbilt disputed Policeman Wadsworth's charge, but was fined. He paid and left for Newport.

IVY ORATION OPENS AMHERST CLASS DAY

AMHERST, June 29.—Class day at Amherst brought with it ideal weather and clear skies.

Assembling at 9:30 o'clock in the college church, the seniors, dressed in the customary caps and gowns, opened the ceremonies and festivities of the day with the ivy oration, the humorous event of the day, and the reading of the ivy poem.

TILLMAN ASKS TARIFF ON TEA

WASHINGTON, July 29.—The income tax amendment to the tariff bill proved to be a subject of great interest to-day, the galleries of the Senate being filled.

The first order of business was the disposition of Senator Tillman's amendment placing a duty of 10 cents a pound on tea to protect that industry in South Carolina.

While the Southern Senators are pleased with their victory in having cotton bagging placed on the free list, they admit that the fight has not yet been fully won, and they will organize to make sure of the victory. Senator Tillman is quoted as saying that the Southern Senators will not accept the conference report unless the house agrees to free cotton bagging. The real fight of this character would, it is believed, win the day.

The senators who prefer the Bailey-Cummins income tax amendment to that of the corporation tax amendment will, it is said to-day, vote for the Bailey-Cummins amendment as a substitute for the Taft amendment and when it is voted down, as they believe it will be, because of the personal appeal made by the President, they will then vote for the corporation tax amendment.

11,000-VOLT SHOCK; LIVES NINE DAYS

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 29.—After receiving eleven thousand volts through his body from contact with a power line, Archibald Chisholm, an employe of the New Haven Railroad, who lived nine days in the New Rochelle Hospital, died to-day as the result of the shock. Railroad men say it was almost a miracle that Chisholm was not instantly electrocuted.

RAH! RAH! '03 VISITS MAYOR

School street was blocked for several minutes to-day when the Harvard class of '03, accompanied by a big brass band, marched into the courtyard of the City Hall and serenaded Mayor Hibbard.

The Mayor was just putting his signature to some documents when he heard the music under his window. He was greeted by cheers when he went to the window to discover the cause of the celebration and was urged to come down and greet the students.

Alderman Matthew Hale introduced the Mayor to the members of his class, depicted the fact that he was not a Harvard man, but pronounced him a good fellow in spite of it, and as a mark of esteem presented him with a straw sombrero and a corncob pipe.

Mayor Hibbard accepted the gifts and addressed the young men briefly, saying that the large iron gates through which they had just passed, though not meaning as much to them as the old gates at Harvard, had never before been opened for an occasion of this kind. He complimented the gathering on its appearance and spirit, and expressed the hope that their outing would be an enjoyable one.

The students continued on their way after giving three cheers and three "Hibbards" for the chief executive.

CRAZED BY HEAT TRIES TO END LIFE

NEW YORK, June 29.—John Babbitt, an iron worker, became insane from the heat to-day at his home, No. 255 East 125th street, and tried to jump out of a third-story window. His wife and four children struggled with him, but the crazed man easily threw them off and was climbing out onto the fire escape when a policeman burst into the apartment and after a hard fight overpowered him.

POPE LOVES AMERICA MOST

ROME, June 28.—A leading prelate makes the statement that Archbishop Farley of New York will shortly be made a Cardinal. That the Pope holds the New York churchman in the highest esteem has been made manifest in many ways.

After the Archbishop on Saturday had tendered the balance of the New York archdiocese's contribution of $35,000 to the Pope's fund for the relief of the sufferers by the earthquakes in Southern Italy, the Pontiff gave Mgr. Farley a superb amethyst ring, set in a circle of twenty-four diamonds, inclosed in gold leaves. It is the most costly ring that Pius X. has given to any prelate.

Much moved by this token of regard, Mgr. Farley begged the Pope to accept the devotion of the American Catholics.

The Pope responded by saying that America held the foremost place in his affections; that he recognizes and appreciates the generosity and the devotion of Americans and looks forward to the day when he may be swept away and North America shall become not only the greatest power in the world, but the most Catholic nation.

CANADA GIVES 500 BISON TO AMERICA

SPOKANE, Wash., June 29.—A second attempt by Canadian officials in charge of the Pablo bison herd at Sewell, Mont., to load the animals for shipment to the Dominion, after several weeks' work, resulted in corralling only 170, or half the number of bison purchased by the Canadian government last year. The bison repeatedly broke through fences, many finally escaping to the hills.

The roundup has been abandoned and the remainder of the herd of some 500 animals will be given to the United States government as a gift from Canada.

U. S. JACKIES ADD CASH TO MURPHY FUND

More assistance has been contributed by charitable readers of the BOSTON AMERICAN to the relief of Mrs. John Murphy and her children. They constitute the family of the Somerville butcher, who killed five children and his wife in a fit of homicidal frenzy, after he had slaved hopelessly and to the verge of human endurance for many years for a pittance scarcely enough to keep the wolf of want from his home.

Murphy is now in the State Hospital for the Insane at Bridgewater. His wife and three children were accorded sepulture in when this newspaper called public attention to their distress. Various small amounts have been contributed. The latest received was $5 from one who writes:

Enclosed find $5 for Mrs. Murphy of Somerville. (Signed) A PEARTEER.

Twelve of the crew of the battleship New Hampshire send $1 each with a letter. The contributors are M. Holmes, F. Fallon, E. Kosiorski, J. F. Cooley, A. Bazse, W. J. Clarke, L. R. Jogue, L. N. Miller, R. R. Willard, E. M. Swain, N. Betley and S. B. Morehouse. Their letter reads:

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Please forward this small contribution to Mrs. Murphy and children. Mrs. Murphy has our heartfelt sympathy, and that her stormy days will be the forerunner of long years of happiness, and that the dark cloud of her trouble will soon show its bright silver lining is the hope of twelve men-of-wamen of the battleship New Hampshire. (Signed) M. HOLMES.

Another letter, containing $2, reads:

Dear Mrs. Murphy: Please accept the enclosed from a sympathizer.

(Signed) MRS. E. L. PRATT,
No. 218 Western avenue, Gloucester.

Some sympathizer cheered Mrs. Murphy's heart yesterday by sending a bouquet to the sorrowing woman.

71-YEAR-OLD FLIRT; HE'S MARRIED NOW

FITCHBURG, June 29.—George E. Page, seventy-one years old, a retired business man, is to-day a benedict as the result of a backyard flirtation with a fair tenant to whom he let a house a week ago. His bride is Mrs. Mary Brooks, thirty-nine, and they are living at No. 129 Snow street, the house when the bridegroom let to the bride. Mrs. Brooks got a divorce from her first husband two years ago. She and Mr. Page were married by the Rev. Arthur J. Cowell, pastor of the Holistone Congregational Church. Page is his second widower man to be married in Fitchburg in ten years.

Greatest American Medical Associations Condemn Benzoate of Soda in Food

The American Medical Association, numbering over 65,000 members, is the largest and most influential medical body in the world. At the Association's annual convention, held at Atlantic City, June 10th, the following resolution was passed concerning the drugging of foods with Benzoate of Soda or other chemical preservative:

"Resolved, That the American Medical Association respectfully urges upon Congress the necessity of amending the national pure food and drugs act in the following particulars, biz:

"(1) To prohibit absolutely and unqualifiedly the use of Benzoate of Soda and similar preservatives in the preparation and preservation of foods destined for interstate commerce.

"(2) ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

(c). the prebention of the utilization of unclean and offensibe waste productions, which now, by the use of such preserbatibes are branded as foodstuffs and sent through the channels of commerce."

Last week resolutions of similar import were also passed in the great conventions of the American Institute of Homeopathy (25,000 members), The Medical Society of New Jersey, and The Pennsylvania Pharmaceutical Association.

All these resolutions express the most weighty opinions on the pure food question ever recorded. They constitute an unanswerable endorsement of the stand taken by H. J. Heinz Company and other reputable manufacturers for strict purity, sound materials, and sanitation in the manufacture of food products.

In the face of these far-reaching opinions, will the Government protect the people, or must the public continue to endanger health by the use of drugged foods? Such foods are not only pronounced harmful because of a drug, but—as indicated by the resolutions—they permit the use of refuse and waste materials.

From drugged food there is only one protection—read labels carefully. The law demands that every article of food prepared with Benzoate of Soda must have that fact stated on the label. Look particularly for obscurely-placed fine type, making some such announcement as "Contains $\frac{1}{10}$ of one per cent. Benzoate of Soda."

Heinz Tomato Ketchup, Fruit Preserves, Sweet Pickles, Apple Butter, Mince Meat, etc., do not contain Benzoate of Soda or any artificial preservative. These—and all of Heinz 57 Varieties—are prepared from fresh, pure materials, by clean methods, in open-to-the-public, sanitary kitchens which are visited and inspected by thousands annually from every part of the world.

FITZGERALD 'HOSTILE WITNESS,' DECLARES HILL

Former Mayor Can't Recall Much About Flagstone Contracts and Says He's Off the Job 'Just Now.'

worth of contracts from the statements of gentlemen connected with my office.

Q.—You sometimes got information from heads of departments? A.—Yes.

Q.—You had a telephone in your office? A.—Yes.

Memory Hasn't Failed.

Q.—So that it was just as easy for you to call up Mitchell on this matter as not? A.—Yes.

Q.—You may have signed this order and contract in Boston? A.—I may have signed this paper in Boston, but it is my impression that I signed it at my Summer place in Old Orchard. I think it was one of many papers brought by Mr. Field or Mr. Stack or Mr. Dolan to me from Boston. All of these gentlemen were connected with my office while I was Mayor.

Q.—You are quite clear that you never gave out a contract without giving it due consideration? A.—Yes.

Q.—Has your memory failed you much, Mr. Mayor, in the last year and a half? A.—I think my memory is as good as that of the average man.

Q.—How old are you? A.—Forty-five.

Q.—So that apart from this case you have not noticed any failure of your memory during the past year and a half? A.—No.

Q.—How is it that you could remember before the Grand Jury what happened a year and a half before, and you cannot now remember what you testified before the Grand Jury one and a half years ago? Attorney Cushing objected to the question and it was excluded).

Fails to Remember.

District Attorney Hill then took the minutes of Mr. Fitzgerald's testimony before the Grand Jury and began to examine the former mayor in regard to it.

Q.—Do you recall being asked by Mr. Moran when you appeared before the Grand Jury as to whether you made any inquiries regarding the last contract made for flagstones and your answer of "No, I just took Mr. Mitchell's word for it"? A.—No. I do not recall either the question or the answer.

Q.—Do you recall being asked by Mr. Moran as to whether or not you were familiar with the statute regarding the advertising of contracts for $2,000 or more? A.—No.

Q.—Do you recall your answer to that question? A.—No.

Q.—Don't you recall that Mr. Moran asked you something about that statute? A.—I do not recall.

Q.—Do you recall that he questioned you on that subject matter? A.—I have no recollection of it.

Q.—As far as your memory goes on that, your mind is a perfect blank? A.—I have no particular recollection on any particular question.

Q.—I did not ask you that. I did not ask you about a particular recollection about a particular question. I asked you if you have a memory that Mr. Moran asked you about that subject? A.—I have a slight recollection that he did ask me something about that matter.

Never Discussed the Case.

Q.—Can you recall the general line of his inquiry? A.—No.

Q.—Do you recall having made this answer in response to a question of Mr. Moran's, 'I did exercise my judgment and when I asked the head of the department in regard to the matter I trusted him in what he said.'? A.—No.

Q.—When did you talk with anyone about this case after you testified before the Grand Jury? A.—I have no recollection of it.

Q.—Have you talked with anyone recently about the case? A.—A number of people have spoken to me about it.

Q.—Who? A.—Why, I suppose people who met me in the streets or on the street. They have commented upon the case, but I have not permitted myself to discuss it.

Q.—Then it has been brought to your mind from time to time? A.—Yes.

Q.—You have not discussed it with anyone? A.—I wouldn't say that.

Q.—Who have you discussed it with during the last three months? A.—I don't know what you mean by the word discussed.

Q.—Anything more than a word, anything amounting to conversation? A.—So many that I couldn't begin to give you the names.

Talked With Judge Corbett.

Q.—Who have you talked with? A.—In what way, Mr. Hill?

Q.—In any way? A.—I talked with so many people about the case that I can't see what reason there is for going into a list of names of people. If you have got any particular point, Mr. Hill, I'll answer any question regarding it.

Q.—You never mind what my reason is; you simply answer my question. Now ask you to give the names of those with whom you have talked about this case? A.—That would be a physical impossibility.

Q.—Name one? A.—Judge Corbett.

Q.—When did you talk with him? A.—About some time ago.

Q.—What did you say to him in regard to the case? A.—I don't recall. It was some incident in regard to it.

Q.—Did you tell him you were going to testify in the case? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you tell him that your mind was a perfect blank in regard to it? A.—No.

Q.—What did he say to you? A.—It was just some incident connected with the trial. I can't recall just what he said.

Q.—What did he say to you?

Attorney Coakley objected on the ground that the question had been already answered.

Mr. Hill: "I have the right to repeat the question to a hostile witness."

Judge Sanderson: "You may answer the question, Mr. Fitzgerald."

A.—I've answered that question, Your Honor. My time is valuable and I presume the Court's is.

Didn't Talk of His Testimony.

Mr. Hill: "I ask the court that the witness be directed to answer the question."

Judge Sanderson: "You may answer the question." A.—Judge Corbett did not discuss the case. What was said was of so little importance that I have no recollection of it. It was some little incident that came up.

Q.—What incident? A.—I don't recall. Q.—Tell us to the best of your knowledge and memory? A.—Well, he said something about the case being on trial and that it was dragging along slowly. He said that he thought I would be called as a witness before the end of the week, and I hoped so, for I wanted to get away for a couple of days.

Q.—Do you remember if Judge Corbett said he had seen Mr. Dennison about the case? A.—I am sure he never mentioned Mr. Dennison's name.

Q.—Did he say he had seen anyone else about the case? Did he say he had seen Mr. Coakley? A.—No.

Q.—Have you talked with anyone as to what your testimony would be when you appeared in court in this trial? A.—No.

Q.—Did you talk with anybody over night either on your testimony of yesterday as what it might be to-day? A.—No.

Q.—Didn't you have a conversation with the defendant, Mitchell? A.—No.

Q.—Didn't you talk with Mr. Coakley? A.—I did not.

Q.—Did you talk with anybody in any shape or manner on the testimony you would offer? A.—I did not.

"I Do Not Recollect."

Q.—Do you remember this question before the Grand Jury, when you were asked with reference to the Metz Moran contract, if you did not understand that a foot of flagstone meant really two feet, do you recall being you said that you understood it? A.—I don't recollect making any such statement.

Q.—Do you recollect the question? A.—No.

Q.—Do you remember Mr. Moran asking you the question concerning the auditor's books and the various prices on flagstone? A.—I do not recollect.

Q.—Do you remember admitting to Mr. Moran that prior to January 1, 1908, that Cuddihy was selling flagstone for 35½ cents delivered at the wharf and for 67 cents delivered on your streets, and you knew that the Maher price was just twice that? A.—I don't recollect.

Mr. Fitzgerald was then shown the first contract and the paper authorizing the authorization for the contract from the Mayor's office. District-Attorney Hill asked:

Q.—Didn't District-Attorney Moran ask you about these papers before the grand jury? A.—I don't recollect.

Q.—Well, he had the Maher paper and the contract and your authorization there, didn't he? A.—Yes.

Q.—Well, now let me see if these papers won't refresh your recollection. I am very glad to find that you do recollect something, and speak up, Mr. Mayor, so the jury can hear you. The jury is anxious to hear all the recollection that you have.

The statement of District Attorney Hill brought Attorney Coakley and Carney to their feet on the instant.

"You have no right," said Coakley, "to speak for the jury. We presume that they are anxious to hear. That's what they're sitting on this case for. You are here to ask questions, not to make comments on what the witness testifies to."

Mr. Hill: "I did not intend to comment. I simply wanted the witness to speak up."

Mr. Coakley: "Well, I'll let the Court rule on that. I believe it was a comment and entirely unnecessary and out of place."

Judge Sanderson: "That was a comment, Mr. Hill, and you should avoid such comments."

Mr. Hill: "Very well, Your Honor, but I did not intend it as a comment."

Turning first to the court and then to the jury, Mr. Fitzgerald said:

Fitzgerald Addresses Jury.

"Your honor and gentlemen of the jury, may it please the Court, I was looking over these papers which Mr. Hill has given me and when I spoke in a rather low tone of voice it was as I believed in answer to a personal question of Mr. Hill, I thought I was aiding him in explaining the papers as he was arranging them before me. I did not think that I was then giving testimony, as I was simply assisting Mr. Hill. I want the jury to hear all that I say. I have nothing to conceal and I am hiding nothing."

Q.—Well to get back to the Grand Jury, did Mr. Moran ask you if you did you know that the request from the supply department to you had the price fixed at 67 cents per foot? A.—I have no recollection.

Q.—No recollection of Mr. Moran's question or the answer you made? A.—No.

Q.—Didn't you know that you were specially deciding whether this 67 cents should be paid for a square foot or for a square foot containing two square feet? A.—I have told you before, Mr. Hill, that I was not fixing the price. These requests for permission to purchase without advertising and these contracts, which I approved, came to me in the regular course of official business, bearing the proper endorsement of trusted officials, and I signed them.

Q.—That answer does not satisfy me. What I want to know is this: What was in your mind when you signed these requests for permission and these contracts, whether you knew you were signing for 67 cents for two square feet, or 67 cents for one square foot?

"Witness No Psychologist."

Attorney Coakley: This witness is not a psychologist and should not be called upon to answer any such question as "What was or what was not in his mind."

Q.—Well, did you sign knowing that you were to pay 67 cents a foot? A.—I have no recollection except that these particular papers here I signed. That is evidenced by my signature.

Q.—Will you not investigate? A.—I never signed anything without investigation.

Q.—Well, now we are getting at something. What was your investigation in regard to these papers? A.—I was satisfied with the assurance that the signatures of other city officials gave me.

Q.—Then you conducted no separate investigation of your own? A.—No.

Q.—Can't you tell some little circumstance as to whether you knew you were signing for 67 cents for two square feet or for one square foot? A.—No.

Q.—Your mind on that subject is an entire blank, is it? A.—Yes, it is.

Q.—You are absolutely satisfied you have no recollection of this particular point? A.—Yes.

Q.—Any more than if the occurence never happened. A.—Yes.

Remembers Moran's Question.

Q.—That's the way you are willing to leave it? A.—Yes.

Q.—Now, referring again to the Grand Jury, were you asked about the Cuddihy purchases and the Cuddihy prices, and do you recall admitting that the Cuddihy prices were fair and the Maher prices light? A.—I do not recall.

Q.—Do you remember Mr. Moran asking you about the Maher contract, and do you remember saying that you took part of the responsibility in fixing the price? A.—I do not recall.

Q.—Did Mr. Moran ask you before the Grand Jury about the law governing the making of contracts? A.—Yes, he did.

Q.—Well now, Mr. Witness, since you recall that, will you tell the jury what you told Mr. Moran regarding the first Maher contract? A.—I can't recollect.

Q.—Can't you remember what you told him in reference to Corporation Counsel Babson? A.—I may have told him, and I say now, that I wouldn't have a second's hesitation in signing any paper that came to me bearing the endorsement of Mr. Babson.

Q.—And is that all you can remember? A.—That's all I can recall.

Q.—Do you remember seeing the Maher contracts before the Grand Jury? A.—Yes.

Wants to Be Positive.

Q.—And do you remember seeing the request for permission signed by you? A.—Yes.

Passing a paper up to the witness Mr. Hill asked:

Two varieties of the John F. Fitzgerald smile.

Michael J. Mitchell.

Q.—Was this before the Grand Jury? A.—I don't recall.

Q.—Was it your signature and you have said that contracts and permissions were shown you before the Grand Jury? A.—Yes, very many papers were shown me, but I couldn't positively say that this particular one was one of them.

Q.—Do you have best judgment? A.—This paper might have been one of them; perhaps it was there, but I am so testify here only on what I absolutely know.

Q.—Well, have you any doubt about this being one paper shown you before the Grand Jury and signed by you? A.—I have no doubt that that paper was shown me, and it is surely a paper signed by me.

"That Mr. Mayor, is just what I wanted to get from you," said the District Attorney.

"This is a permission signed by you allowing the Superintendent of Supplies to buy flagstone at 67 cents per foot."

Q.—Have you any recollection of calling the attention of Mr. Moran the fact that you signed a permission for 67 cents per foot without understanding that it was a square foot or by the linear foot? A.—I do not recall.

"Mind Blank Again?"

Q.—Will you say that you did not? A.—No.

Q.—And you won't say that you did? A.—No.

Q.—Your mind is a blank again? A.—Yes.

Q.—Didn't Mr. Moran question you at length as to square and linear feet? A.—Yes.

Q.—What did you explain to Mr. Moran regarding your signing these permissions to buy flagstone for 67 cents per foot? A.—I do not recall.

Q.—Do you remember telling the Grand Jury that Mr. Babson's only duty in signing the contracts was certifying to the correctness of the form? A.—I don't recall.

Q.—Did you tell the Grand Jury that Mr. Babson had nothing whatever to do with fixing the price in a contract? A.—I don't recall.

Q.—As a matter of fact, did Babson have anything to do with fixing a price? A.—Not that I know of.

Q.—Didn't you tell the Grand Jury that no one but you and Mitchell had a right to fix prices on flagstone? A.—I was or what was not in his mind.

Q.—Isn't it a fact that only your two offices, the Mayor's and Mitchell, the purchasing agent, could pass upon the question of price? A.—I have understood that I had anything to do with the fixing of the price. That was a matter for the head of the supply department.

Might Disapprove Contract.

Q.—But if you thought the price excessive you had the power to disapprove the contract, didn't you? A.—Certainly.

Q.—Well, in a case then, you and Mitchell jointly fixed the price? A.—No, not exactly. Of course, I had something to do with it, in so far as I had the power to disapprove the contract, but the contract came to me as made by the head of the supply department. It was then signed.

Q.—No one else but you and Mitchell had any power in any way, then, to fix a price. A.—No one.

Q.—Do you remember that Mr. Moran asked you this question: "if Cuddihy was delivering goods to the city at half the rate paid to Maher, it is apparent that Mr. Mitchell deliberately deceived or misinformed you?" A.—I do not remember.

Q.—Do you recall that your answer to the question was "Yes"? A.—No, I do not recall.

Q.—Do you know the Maher Brothers? A.—No.

Q.—You don't know where Richard Maher is now, do you? A.—I never saw him until I saw him in court the other day.

Q.—Then was my question, I repeat it, you if you know where Richard Maher is? A.—No.

Q.—Do you recall that Mr. Moran asked you the question: "Did anyone make any complaint to you that Maher Brothers were getting the city?" A.—No.

Q.—Do you recall that your answer was: "I don't think any person being talked with me about it. I did not know anything about it until I saw it in the papers after the Finance Commission began."? A.—I do not recall the answer.

Big Crowd Besieges Doors.

Toward noon the crowd in the corridors of the courthouse became so large that it was necessary to place two officers at the doors, one on the inner door and another on the outer. Every seat in the courtroom was taken. There were many prominent lawyers and politicians present, including former assistant district-attorneys Felix McGettrick and Joseph A. Denehy, former Superintendent of streets James F. Doyle, who served under Mayor Fitzgerald, was also present.

District Attorney Hill handed each of the Maher contracts to Mr. Fitzgerald and then reading from the minutes of the Grand Jury asked if he could recall the various questions and answers. Mr. Fitzgerald said: "I have no definite memory regarding these contracts. I recall that Mr. Moran handed me several of the Maher contracts for the purpose of identifying my signature."

"Never mind what the purpose was," said Mr. Hill. "You could not know what Mr. Moran's purpose was except by inference. What I want you now, whether or not you recall that Mr. Moran handed you these contracts?"

"I recall that he handed me some contracts," replied the witness.

Q.—Do you recall that Mr. Moran asked you if you had talked with Mr. Mitchell before you signed the contract was made? A.—I don't recall.

Q.—Do you recall that before the grand jury you said you did ask Mr. Mitchell about that contract, because it was a large one, and that Mr. Mitchell said that Maher Bros. controlled the market and was the only firm which could supply the stone, and that it was a good contract? A.—I do not recall that I said that.

Q.—Do you recall that you also said before the Grand Jury that you asked about the Cuddihys and that Mr. Mitchell said they had kind of gone out of business and that no one even beside Maher could supply the stone? A.—I do not recall.

Q.—Do you recall that you also said that you believed what Mitchell told you, that you believed, even that day you appeared before the Grand Jury, that Mitchell told you the truth? A.—I do not recall.

Q.—If you knew that this kind of stone could have been purchased for 35½ cents a square foot, you would not have signed the order approving the contract at 67 cents a square foot would you? A.—I answered that question yesterday.

"Memory at Short Range."

Q.—I don't recall that you did, but perhaps your memory is better than mine—at short range anyway. Would you have signed had you known stone could be bought for 35½ cents? A.—No.

Q.—Do you recall saying before The Grand Jury that they had done this thing correctly—I don't recall.

Q.—When you appeared before the Grand Jury you were sworn? A.—Yes sir.

Q.—And you realized the solemnity of the occasion? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you did your best to tell the truth? A.—Yes.

Q.—You did not tell the Grand Jury anything which was not the truth? A.—I don't think I did.

Q.—Anything you definitely stated to the Grand Jury was true? A.—Yes.

Q.—Now, after this interval, your memory has changed so much that you can't remember things you then said? A.—I do not recall what I testified to before the Grand Jury.

Q.—Was what you testified was fresher in your mind then than it is now? A.—I answered that question yesterday. It was.

Q.—Was it not learned of the Maher Bros. affair when the Finance Commission began to investigate it, did you not? A.—Yes.

Q.—When did you terminate the contract with Maher Bros.? A.—In the Fall of 1907, Winter of 1907.

Q.—And soon after the Finance Commission had made the Maher disclosures? A.—Immediately after.

Q.—Was this before Dec. 6, 1907? A.—I can't recall.

"Out of the Job" Just Now.

Q.—Didn't you have some communications from the Finance Commission and didn't you write them some letters so that you can fix this date? A.—Yes, but they are on file at City Hall.

Q.—You remarked the District Attorney, "I forgot that you are out of the job now." "Yes, just now," was the smiling retort of the former mayor.

"It may back soon," put in Attorney Coakley.

"Well, we may assume that," replied the district-attorney.

Q.—Did you, Mr. Witness, when you got ready to terminate the Maher contract, make any investigation? A.—I do not recall.

Q.—Your unfortunate lapse of memory, Mr. Witness.

Here Attorney Carney called the attention of the court again to the comment of the district-attorney: "He has been told repeatedly by Your Honor to cease from comment, and now he is at it again."

Judge Sanderson cautioned the district-attorney to refrain from comment.

Many an apparently strong, healthy man or woman has been, stricken without notice by serious kidney and bladder disease only to realize too late what might have been prevented with proper care and attention.

If you find you have some of the symptoms mentioned, you need then a remedy that will reach the seat of the disease and at the same time build up the system generally.

Such a remedy is Swamp-Root, the great Kidney, Liver and Bladder remedy. In thousands of cases it has accomplished just the work you need performed so well.

TUTOR FOR FLIRTING? WHAT'S THE USE, ASKS ACTRESS WHO KNOWS

A little Latin: conjugation of the verb amo.

A little mathematics: such as the problem of making two hearts beat as one.

A little astronomy: an accurate knowledge of the time of the full moon.

A little optics: the ability to make goo-goo eyes.

And some mild athletics, such as squeezing a hand or quickly pounding a waist—A suggested college course in flirting.

Miss Rosalind Coghlan of "The Traveling Salesman" Company at the Park Theatre, who discusses Professor Palmer's theory of "flirting."

Now that Professor George Herbert Palmer of Harvard has come out boldly in favor of boys and girls flirting, it has been suggested that a course in the art, to which a student might be taught when, where and how much to flirt, might be adopted.

Conservative Boston does not take kindly to the innovation preached by the aged professor of Harvard. Of several women seen no one seemed to be found who endorsed the views of Professor Palmer. Most of them were inclined to the view of Rosalind Coghlan, the actress, who is in "The Traveling Salesman," now playing at the Park Theatre.

Miss Coghlan smiled demurely when asked what she thought about instruction in flirting for boys and girls in general and Harvard colleagues in particular.

"There are three reasons against it," she said solemnly.

"First—flirting is bad. There is enough mischief in this old world of ours without inventing more.

"Second—no course in flirting is needed by collegers, not in Harvard of all colleges.

"Third—No self-respecting girl would care to be taught to flirt. If she must learn, she would rather be her own teacher."

Pardon This Smile, Please.

Here Miss Coghlan's audile became an excellent imitation of a grin, if such expression may be permitted.

"But, seriously," she said, "I wonder what Professor Palmer is thinking about to come out openly and advise flirting. If that is exactly what he meant.

"Maybe he didn't mean actual flirting. Maybe he meant only a harmless pastime. Not real flirting, as I understand it, meaning pretended love, which is too serious a diversion altogether.

"There have been tragic results from flirting, when one party to it was in earnest and the other was but a trifler. One may quote to read it a daily paper to know that. Only to-day I read about a Philadelphia girl who committed suicide because she was falsely accused of flirting with a young woman.

"To 'The Traveling Salesman' it has proved most both friend and foe—friend as drummer. She is lonesome. He is bold, bad, man, and sometimes he does. She does form acquaintance with him. But it all ends happily. If all flirtations are conducted so advantageously, I don't know but what the colleges and flirting might be desirable. But I fear not.

"Some decent girls, they will do it more or less. I mean they will torment their admirers to distraction and frequently play one off against the other, and the young men do their best to win over heart may be humbled and snubbed by her throwing her feminine perversity. But the young men know that it is simply the silliness of their ardor.

Depends on Stage Setting.

"And human beings are susceptible to environment, too. It makes a difference where one is. Edward and Angeline might be as staid as judges ordinarily. But take a canoe, a moonlight evening, a waveshaded beach, a cosey piazza or other place favorable to sentiment, and harmless flirting is by nature's laws. Only it must be harmless heart—not that which causes real pain for either youth or maid.

"Flirting is, like many other stimulants, all right if indulged in occasionally and in very guarded quantity. But a victim to the habit figures not only herself but others. On the whole, it is better less of it than more of it. Certainly it does not need to be taught."

In the civil life institutions like Harvard, no student of history can thoroughly understand the character of Henry VIII. without taking the sophomore course in flirting, and no student in American history knows his book as well as he should if he doesn't appreciate the fact that George Washington sometimes liked to direct his mind with a flirtation.

For, according to T. R. Aldrich's "Bay Boy," there is the following historical evidence: "According to Dame Secretary, George Washington flirted with her just a little bit—in what a stately and highly finished manner can be imagined." That is the point. The colleges will make it stately when they get 'round to it. No cutting of heads on girls' shoulders on the last local up from Nantasket.

There is no reason for waiting for a girl to get in college, according to some of the best educators. She should have the elementary training in the public schools. The fun drill could be introduced as a substitute for plain sewing or bread mixing, and that would teach the girls the proper use of the seductive flirting tool ever devised.

The proper way to drop a handkerchief to have it picked up might also be taught. The best way to look at a man in a casual state, but having the shoelace come untied should not be taken up before the class as it was in the high school. Some educators way the shooting pig should receive a place in the public schools at all, but made a compulsory subject after the girls get within the influences of Professor Palmer at Radcliffe.

Popular With Students.

Certainly, all of the students at all the colleges, including the theological seminaries, will loudly rejoice when Professor Palmer's suggestion is adopted and a course in flirting, boy will sit beside girl, is offered.

There will be no need to bother about making the course elective or compulsory in other words, the students at Amherst, Smith, Radcliffe and Wellesley, the unwary youths of Dartmouth and Yale and Harvard and Princeton and the young ladies and women of Carlisle will all take the course.

Indeed it may be doubted if the vast majority of the students have not been taking the course for some time. "Common knowsat" even to such liberal minded teachers as Professor Palmer. During the commencement exercises at every college on this broad continent the students whisper to each other "So-and-so is going to be married right after commencement. The fact is that at every commencement Cupid confers nearly as many degrees of F. B. as the learned colleges authorities give A. B's.

ALL READY FOR ARCHBISHOP'S JUBILEE FETE

Preparations for the celebration of the homecoming and silver jubilee of Archbishop William H. O'Connell in Mechanics Building to-morrow night are practically completed. There only remains the finishing work of the skilled decorators, who have been transforming the interior of the building into a brilliant display of colors and electrical effects. Their work will be completed to-night and the building will be ready for the reception of the guests.

Although invitations have been sent to distinguished clergymen and laymen in different parts of New England, the celebration will be open to everyone who wishes to go. No tickets will be required either for the Mechanics Hall reception or the religious ceremonies in the Cathedral to-morrow.

The only reserved seats in Mechanics Building will be for the societies which will act as escort for the Archbishop in the procession to the hall.

The ceremonies at the Cathedral tomorrow morning will begin at 10 with the celebration of a solemn pontifical high mass by the Archbishop. Assisting will be members of the monsignori. Bishop Anderson will preach the sermon. The choir will be augmented by the addition of a number of the soloists of the different Catholic churches throughout the diocese. A special musical program has been arranged by Signor Pio Da Luca, director of the Cathedral choir.

In the evening at Mechanics Building Judge DeCourcey of Lawrence, associate Justice of the Superior Court, will make the address of welcome in behalf of the clergy and the representatives of the laity. The gift of the Catholics in the archdiocese will then take place.

The most treasured gift brought back by Archbishop from Rome is a beautiful cross presented him by the Pope. It is five inches long, of sapphire and diamonds, and set in the centre is a rich miniature of the Madonna. As an example of the jeweler's art it could scarcely be excelled anywhere.

PRETTY GIRL LURED AWAY, SAY PARENTS

Lured from home and hotel by a handsome stranger, parents in the belief the fate of pretty thirteen-year-old Bessie Latkin, who has been missing from her home, No. 960 Commercial street, since last Friday, 17. The last time she was seen by her parents was about 1 p. m. the 17th, when she left home, saying she was going to see the parade in Charlestown.

Her father, Jacob Latkin, has asked the police to assist in the search for her. The police are investigating a report that the child leaving home and says he believes that wherever she may be she is being detained against her will. The father declares the girl was lured away by a man well known to the family. And has given his name to the police and search is being made for him.

Mr. and Mrs. Latkin received information from a Chelsea girl, who knows Bessie well, that she was seen on Dover street in the South End last Friday afternoon. The father went in search of her in certain places in the South End district, and while he was reported to him she might be, but no trace of her was found.

While engaged in the search in that section he further was informed that she was in a carriage with a man, to which she he failed to find her. Sunday the father was told that the girl was in New York, but he does not think she is so far away from home.

The father and mother are almost heart broken over the disappearance of Bessie, who is one of five children. They say that she was the life of the home, and they hoped she would soon return.

The girl is about 5 feet 2 inches tall and weighs about 110 pounds. She has black hair and is considered pretty. When she left home she wore a white skirt, a dark brown skirt, black shoes and stockings.

SHOE MEN SAY EAST IS EQUAL OF THE WEST

Leading shoe manufacturers in Massachusetts emphatically deny the claims of the Chicago manufacturers that the Mississippi Valley is distancing Lynn, Brockton or Haverhill in the shoe industry. They claim that more shoes are manufactured annually in Brockton than in the entire West.

Figures show that 70,000 cases of shoes were shipped last week to western points, and these figures take no account of the shoes manufactured for wear in New England. Over 2,000,000 cases of shoes have been shipped out of Massachusetts from Jamesy I. Brockton ranks first in output, Lynn second and Haverhill third.

"The increase in the shoe industry in most factories in Massachusetts than in Chicago and the Mississippi Valley," said H. H. Jones of the Commonwealth Shoe Company. "They have some smart shoe concerns in the West, but there are only two or three in Chicago. There are a good many more than two or three big concerns here. The business is bound to grow in Chicago because there are more people about there and they have got to have shoes.

"We of Massachusetts are still on the map, however, and we are still making shoes and good shoes. When I speak of the greater increase here I am not speaking of percentage because when a man makes two pairs of shoes where he only made one the gain originally of course his increase is 100 per cent."

LABOR IN FIGHT FOR LIFE WITH STEEL TRUST

NEWCASTLE, Pa., June 29.—If the United States Steel Corporation does do not miscarry, the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers will, tomorrow night at midnight, be brought to a close after thirty-one years.

The death knell of the association will sit center here, beginning Thursday morning. The mills will keep open, the trust managers say, even if there are only half a dozen available men instead of 10,000 men.

After this struggle has ended, the United States Steel Corporation, if successful, will never again have to deal with union labor.

Three weeks ago the American Tin Plate Company issued an order forbidding all union tin plants controlled by the Tin Trust getting forth that after June 30 no tin plate controlled by the American Tin Plate Company, subsidiary to the Steel Corporation, would be turned "open shop."

This has resulted in opposition from all of the tin workers, who form seventy-five per cent. of the membership of the Amalgamated Association.

If the trust is victorious the independents will also be forced to disunionize their mills in order to compete with the trust mills. A great drop in the price of tin would be the result.

BOSTON MAN KILLED.

WESTFIELD, June 29.—James F. Coughlin of No. 10 Linden street, Dorchester, and employed by E. E. Farnham & Co. of Boston, was killed early to-day by being run over by a train on the Northampton division of the New Haven road. He was thirty years old and unmarried.

WHAT ANÆMIA IS

HOW A WELL DEFINED CASE AT LYNN WAS CURED.

Under Tonic Treatment Health and Strength Were Restored.

What anæmia is, how to recognise it and the value of the tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills should be known by the mother of every growing girl.

Anæmia is simply lack of blood.

It is one of the most common and dangerous diseases with which growing girls suffer.

It is common because the blood so often becomes impoverished during development, when girls are too frequently allowed to overstudy, overwork and suffer from lack of exercise. It is dangerous because of the stealthiness of its approach, often long well developed before its presence is recognized, and because of its tendency to grow so steadily worse, if not promptly checked, that it may run into consumption.

Mrs. William Clark, of No. 44 Park street, Lynn, Mass., urges every sufferer from anæmia to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Her great faith in them is based upon her own experience.

"Two years ago," she says, "I was so sick with anæmia that I could not walk up stairs. No one can know how I suffered. I was very pale and had severe headaches with dizzy spells. I was so short of breath that I couldn't go up stairs. My stomach was very weak, food didn't agree with me and I had but little appetite.

"I became discouraged with my doctor's treatment as he did not help me at all. Finally I decided that I would take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills instead. I began to feel better by the time I had taken a few boxes and was soon able to eat heartily. I gained in strength until my health was restored."

The treatment of anæmia with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is as certain as anything in medical science. They act directly on the blood, which they purify and build up to its normal strength.

They are sold by druggists everywhere, after-effects of the grip and fevers, stomach trouble, nervous breakdown, sick headaches, St. Vitus' dance and neuralgia.

A booklet, "Diseases of the Blood," will be sent free to any sufferer with anæmia upon request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are for sale by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.80, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

ESCAPES IN GUN CHASE

After a wild chase by policemen of the Court square station through several streets on the water front, in which two shots were fired after him, a burly negro, who had held up and attempted to rob a man in an alleyway between Milk and India streets early to-day, made good his escape, and the police of the entire city are searching for him.

Patrolman Michael Trayers was standing on India street when he heard a man shouting at the top of his voice for help, as he was being robbed. The patrolman was just in time to see a big negro dragging a man—evidently a foreigner—into an alleyway leading to Milk street, and taking in the situation, started after him. The negro released his intended victim and ran through the alley to Milk street.

The negro is described as being five feet eleven inches in height, twenty-eight years old, 170 pounds, with dark clothes and a black hat.

The man whom he attempted to rob could not be found after the chase.

TIMILTY AND FAY AT WAR

There is trouble in Alderman "Jim" Timilty's Ward 18 organization. Representative "Tom" Fay, one of the alderman's most active lieutenants, threatens to start a rival organization.

After a stormy meeting last evening, when the members of the organization indorsed Senator John J. Butler for a third term, Representative Fay branded Timilty as a "rimmaser," declared that he had deceived him with regard to the senatorial nomination and gave the members to understand that he would withdraw from the organization and contest for the nomination with Senator Butler.

Representative Fay declares that Timilty promised him the support of the organization for the next term in the Senate which John J. Butler has had for the past two years, the understanding being that Butler was to be a candidate for Aldermen Timilty's seat in the Board of Aldermen.

AIR IS TOO HOT FOR ZEPPELIN

BERLIN, June 29.—On account of the overheating of the metal work of the balloon Zeppelin I., it was found necessary to land at an early hour to-day on the voyage from Friedrichshafen to Metz. It was reported that the balloon was slightly damaged by the metal work fusing, so intense was the heat.

The balloon will be permanently stationed at Metz for military purposes. The start from Friedrichshafen was made late last night.

Why Prices Are $10 and $12

As these values are not equalled and are not likely to be duplicated in Boston this season, we believe our customers are entitled to some explanation of the astounding values. The manufacturer has agreed to sell at popular prices this season over 25,000 Outing Suits. After filling his orders there were 700 suits left unsold. These he closed out to us at half price, because the Siegel chain of stores are his largest customers and because he is now working on fall goods and had to clear his stocks of summer merchandise.

To Show How Good The Values Are

One buyer of one of our departments bought two suits and several others bought one each. These buyers are the best judges of merchandise that high salaries can command and know a good bargain when they see it. Get in the running and get a $20.00 suit for $10.00, or a $25.00 value for $12.00.

BON VOYAGE TO DR. ALEXANDER

Men of Scottish names gathered at the dinner tables at Young's Hotel to wish bon voyage to the Rev. Dr. James Alexander, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, on the eve of his starting on a two months' visit to the land of his birth. In addition to their earnest good wishes they tendered him a letter of credit on the Bank of England to the value of $200. The songs of "Auld Reekie" were sung by Dr. Alexander's people, and the atmosphere lacked only a Scotch mist to completely deceive as to the circumstroundings of the gathering.

The party was made up of members of the Scots' Charitable Society of which Dr. Alexander is chaplain. The toastmaster was Alexander McGregor, a past president of the society. The other speakers and their toasts were Aiderman Walter Ballantyne for the city; the Rev. James Hunter, of the North Presbyterian Church; Alexander Sutherland, vice-president of the Scots' Charitable Society; Dr. Miles Maclachlan, "Medicine"; Hugh C. Brown, "Business"; Philip S. Parker, "Press"; John Sullivan, "Law"; James Pottinger, First Presbyterian Church; John Campbell, "Good Night."

ALUMNI DAY AT DARTMOUTH

HANOVER, N. H., June 29.—The exercises to-day of the one hundred and fortieth commencement of Dartmouth College were given over entirely to the alumni, who held reunions of various bodies throughout the day.

The Phi Beta Kappa Society held its annual meeting early in the morning to receive into its fellowship the highest ranking scholars of the graduating class. The annual Phi Beta Kappa address, which in many former years has been delivered by some eminent scholar, was omitted this year, the address before the alumni being the feature of the morning.

The general alumni association of the college met immediately following the Phi Beta Kappa Society gathering and was addressed by Charles F. Dana, LL. D., of the class of 1872, of New York city. The business meeting, and election of officers of the association took up the early part of the afternoon.

HARVARD GRADS HOLD REUNIONS

Harvard graduates, drawn here for Commencement, are having a merry time today at reunions.

The biggest outing today is that of the Class of 1906, which takes a trip to Cohasset and Nantasket. This class, one of the largest that ever graduated from Harvard, passed yesterday at the Vesper Country Club in Lowell, and later had a banquet at the American House.

It was a great day for fraternizing of Harvard alumni in and about Boston. Old classmates met for the first time in years —and were happy. It was a big day.

The alumni of the Harvard Dental School carried out an elaborate program, beginning at the old building on North Grove street, for clinics and addresses, and they afterward visited the new dental school in the Fenway and later banqueted at Young's, where John Hopkins officers and listened to an address by Charles H. Bird on "The Value of a College Education to a Business Man."

The classes of 1900 and 1903 mingled at the Bellevue before starting for Nantasket, by boat, 250 strong, to Nahant, and the other, numbering 200, at Wellesley. Both met today at J. D. Clark's. Both classes got an ovation as they marched through the business section. After dinner at Nahant the 900 class sang "Fair Harvard" and the 1900 members of the class of '24 put in a good, enjoyable day at the Brookline Country Club, with golf, tennis and baseball.

STONEHAM, June 29.—Charged with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon upon William Parker of High street, this town, Antonio Todaro, twenty, was sentenced to the House of Correction for one year by Judge Johnson in the Woburn District Court to-day. Parker alleged to have struck Parker with an axe when Parker refused to pay him some money which he claimed Parker owed him for work on the latter's farm.

BEST ATHLETES WILL CONTEST K. OF C. DAY

WORCESTER, June 26.—Over 500 entries have been received for the Knights of Columbus field day at Agricultural Park on July 3. The big two days' celebration will start with a grand exemplification of the third degree, the major degree of the order, on a class of eighty-eight candidates in historic Mechanics' Hall, on the afternoon of the Fourth. Over 3000 Knights from all parts of New England will gather to witness the degree work, which will greatly add to the solemnity of the ceremony.

The field day, which is the biggest athletic event ever planned by the Knights of Columbus in New England, will be preceded by a parade, in which over 2,000 Knights will participate.

Citizens of the Heart of the Commonwealth have not been so enthused over an athletic event since the days of Tommy Conneff, whose mark of 4:12 2-5 for the mile still stands. State Deputy William J. O'Brien of Boston will be the honorary referee of the meet.

Among the prominent athletes whose entry blanks have been received are Gilbert, of Yale, one of the greatest pole vaulters that ever competed for the blue, who will try for the record, and Harry Porter, the crack high jumper. The Worcester Academy quartet of weight men, Bartlett, Meslinger and Howard, who have swept everything before them in the preparatory school meets of Harvard, Yale and Brown, have remained in training since the close of the school term and will give a good account of themselves July 3.

Oscar Headland, the game little runner from the Brookline gymnasium, looks to be the class in the half-mile event, but there are said to be two "dark horses" entered who may take his measure. The B. A. A. will be largely represented.

CYCLE RECORDS BROKEN.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 29.—Ray Dear of Buffalo, N. Y., on a motor cycle, broke ten world's records and gave a splendid exhibition of riding. The new records established by Dear were as follows:

One mile, 1:05; two miles, 2:09 4-5; three miles, 3:14 2-5; four miles, 4:18 3-5; five miles, 5:23 1-5; six miles, 6:26 1-5; seven miles, 7:33 3-5; eight miles, 8:38 4-5; nine miles, 9:46 4-5; ten miles, 11:06 3-5.

TIGERS KEEP ROSSMAN.

CHICAGO, June 29.—Any chance which the White Sox had of securing Claude Rossman of the Tigers has been shaken by Hughey Jennings, who declares he will retain Rossman for his hitting ability.

POLO MATCH PUT OFF.

LONDON, June 29.— The Hurlingham committee, fearing their grounds won't have recovered sufficiently by Wednesday to enable the second of the international polo matches between America and England to be played, have further postponed the fixture until the following day.

BELMONT'S HORSE LOSES.

NEWMARKET, Eng., June 29.—The July Stakes of fifty sovereigns each for two-year-olds, five furlongs and 140 yards, was run here to-day and was won by Prince Rupert. Maid of Corinth was second and Perin third. Among the unsuccessful starters was August Belmont's Hasty Pudding.

JEFFRIES DIDN'T APPEAR.

NEW HAVEN, Ct., June 29.—Jim Jeffries did not appear at Savin Rock last night with his sparring partner, Sam Berger, as scheduled. There was a hitch over the question of fifteen security, a license to box at the Rock and the exhibition has been postponed to July 5.

SHAKE-UP DUE IN DOVE RANKS BY JOHN DOVEY

With one more defeat added to their already long list, the Doves departed last night for Philadelphia to again take up the struggle with the Phillies.

The final game with the Phillies here was laid away in the Doves' ice chest early in the afternoon, and that they did not keep it there is due altogether to the careless work of Beaumont and Sweeney, coupled with the fact that Umpire Rigler is afflicted with a solid ivory skull.

President John Dovey left ahead of the team and went to New York, where, it is said, he will attempt to whisper a few magic words into the ear of President Pulliam, which will have the effect of causing Rigler to be removed among the missing at games played in the future by the Doves.

Let us all hope.

Other things are said to be brewing for the Doves, the outcome of which will likely be made known within the next few days. The Doves' new president is said to have sharpened up his axe before leaving Boston and that when he gets through swinging it several of the old-timers, who are largely responsible for the present position of the Doves in the fag race, will have their names erased from the pay rolls.

It is said that the first to go will be Richey, Dahlen and Beaumont, and that waivers will be asked on them at once. The young blood recently added to the team makes the presence of these "has beens" not only unnecessary, but an incubus to the club.

Following the disposal of these players, it is said that a few cuts will next be made on Sweeney's corner of the diamond, and this move will also meet with the approval of the fans. With the possible exception of Dahlen, Sweeney has lost more games than any of the other members of the aggregation.

He is trying all the time and occasionally pulls off a brilliant play, but almost invariably goes to pieces on the next chance and stages an exhibition of the Fenimore Barry style, that tries the patience of the spectators and costs the club another game.

The Doves will play five games with the Phillies and then go to Brooklyn for three contests, returning to the home lot on July 8 for a long stay.

BASEBALL NEWS AND NOTES

Joe Castillon is a strong advocate for morning practice, claiming it beneficial in the average ball player.

* * *

"Bill" Daniels has signed with Toronto. Since leaving the Phillies Bill has worked his way right, managing his signature to baseball documents and has been receiving a big salary.

* * *

Two fifteen-inning games were played on scoreless terms in the Boston-Providence league last week. Speed Powell, late of the Highlander staff, and Sartidge, recently with Providence, were in one of them. Powell finally landing the game.

* * *

Members of the Rohe family in the big leagues are Wendell, Marquard, Leverett, Lindaman —all pitchers but one. The Cys are not so numerous, but they are entitled to being the most distinguished actors of that bunch.

* * *

Wants a new quality of pitcher that can beat last year, and then he was one of the best pitchers in baseball. His speed used to befuddle batters, and while there are many who object to games pitched by spit-ball experts on the ground that the ball contests are usually dead, it must be conceded that in his specialty Walsh is about as good as any of them when in trim.

* * *

"I think the greatest pitcher baseball ever has known is Walter Johnson," says Kid Elberfeld. "I have batted against all the great ones, right and left, except Mathewson, and can only judge Matheson's work from batting against him. Why, Johnson can't tell you what's coming up and then you can't hit it."

* * *

Bob Unglaub, of the Washingtons, is a very handy man to have around.

* * *

Jim Vaugh, the big Southpaw with the Highlanders, is a great pitcher, but he has established a record of being knocked out of two consecutive games and pitching a solid game the next. While small consolation to him it is a record dear to the soul of while baseball it is merely regarded as a remarkable.

OFFICIALS TO INSPECT AUTO COURSE TO-DAY

By J. C. KERRISON.

A thorough inspection of the light car national championship race and a consideration of the plans and arrangements for the same are now being made by the powers that be in the American Automobile Association and the officers of the Lowell Automobile Club, the latter of whom will have the honor of holding the same during the first week of September next.

Chairman Hoover of the contest committee of the A. A. A., accompanied by Starter Fred Wagner, arrived in Boston early this morning and after breakfast at the Touraine as the guest of President Lewis R. Speare of the A. A. A., and accompanied by a party of newspapermen, they journeyed to Lowell and there went into consultation with President Helme and other officials of the Lowell Club.

The purpose of the visit is to look over the grounds, determine upon the course and to arrange the many details of the event, which, although made possible by the work of the local organization, will, it is understood, be held by the American Automobile Association.

The little friction, misunderstanding, or whatever else it might be termed, theretofore existing between the representatives of the A. A. A. and the Lowell Club, have all had been abridged, and unless some one kicks over the traces no further difficulty should be encountered.

Chairman Hoover returns to Buffalo on the afternoon train, where he will soon take up the duties of the Globus tour, of which he has charge and which he is to direct all the way from start to finish of the year, excelling in point of importance and excellence even the big events of the past. This tour starts Saturday, July 12.

The performance of Fisk tires in the western stock chassis race at Chicago was one of the most notable ever seen in an automobile speed contest. Bourque, who drove the Knox into second place, leading the race by a very small margin, carried Fisk 3 inch cord tires and tested out three and half hours on the one set without the necessity of a tire trouble. The big Knox went through the 350-mile grind on one set of tires, and changed rear tires on the twelfth lap only as a matter of precaution. The rear tires shown were in good condition even at this stage of the contest.

These rear tires only were used throughout the race and in view of the badly cut up condition of the course, on account of the small car race of the day previous, it is remarkable to think that rubber and fabric will stand the strain of such a long race. Bourque also made the fastest lap over the 23.27-mile course, when he covered it in 23 min. 34 sec. Deanbion, in another Knox, averaged 89.2 miles an hour over a specially measured mile, timed by an electric timing device.

For the first time in eleven years there will be no motor show in Paris this year, the annual exhibition being replaced by a series of seven-day polos to twenty-eight different teams holding another show in mid 1910. This is the result of a row between the Automobile Club of France and the makers.

OLYMPIC CHAMPIONS TO COMPETE

Many American and Olympic champions will compete at the Clan-Na-Gael games at Oak Island, Monday, July 5. A large number of entries have been received for the amateur games, including the famous Irish-American relay team of New York, Robbins, Archer, Rosenberger and Bradford. This team holds the world's mile relay record and are coming over with the intention of setting a new mark for the distance. Robbins is the former local champion, who ran in the celebrated quarter-mile race in London last July, in which Carpenter, the American winner, was disqualified for a foul.

The prizes are the best that have ever been given in this vicinity, consisting of solid gold 18 karat medals for first in each event. The events that make up the athletic programme are: 100-yard dash, 440-yard run, novelty run, mile run, five-mile run, running high jump, running broad jump, putting eleven-pound shot and open 5-mile race.

The other features consist of a hurling game between the Wolf Tone Hurling Club of South Boston, champions of New England, and the Young Ireland team of Lowell.

JOE THOMAS TO BOX WITH TOM SULLIVAN

Joe Thomas not so very long ago was headed for the top place in the middleweight ranks and still thinks that he has a look in. Just where he gets off at as a star performer will be checked up tonight when he meets Tommy Sullivan of Lawrence, at the Armory A. Besides being an entertainment of Queensberry sport worth looking at it will probably be the last show the club will put on for its members this summer, as hot weather and boxing never did combine well.

Thomas is better known on the Coast than here in the East in spite of his several hard battles which has made him familiar with the local fans and he has hosts of admirers who would like to see him trying his skill against his rivals Pappe and Kriviel. Just what Sullivan has with fighters of such quality will be confirmed to-night when he shows with Sullivan.

The Lawrence boy is one of the most satisfactory glove wielders in the game. He received the indorsement of the Philadelphia fans who want lots of action and whenever he is in the ring something has to drop, be it himself or the other fellow.

He is no boxer to speak of, but for hard hitting Sully is there with the goods, and likes nothing better than to swap in furicane style.

Thomas always liked the kind that came to him, as he is a fine judge of distance and is deadly when he lands, so the contest looks like one with plenty of slam and a test of grit on the part of each lad.

Tom Foley of South Boston and Young McDonough of Manchester, N. H., who meet in the semi-final, have an old score to settle, which assures the sports that the bout will be as warm an affair as their last contest at the club. The decision in that contest has caused an unusual amount of argument among the sports. Eddie Shevlin of Roxbury will, in the opinion of the Worcester sports, have the toughest battle of his life when he clashes with Young Dundee of Worcester in one of the six-round bouts. Max Baker will also have a stiff argument with Bobby Tickle, the Pawtucket boy with the great wallop.

SCRAGG WINS ON FOUL.

NEW YORK, June 20.—The ten-round bout between Tommy Scragg and Tommy Stone at the Olympic Athletic Club was stopped by the referee in the seventh round owing to persistent fouling by Stone. Scragg had decidedly the best of the bout from the start.

JOHNSON GETS OFFER OF FIGHT WITH SANDY

NEW YORK, June 20.—There is a prospect, although a very faint one, of Jack Johnson taking on his old enemy, Sandy Ferguson, the erratic Boston heavyweight, sometime during the latter part of next month.

The black champion received a telegram yesterday from Tex Lecksy, the Frisco promoter, offering Johnson a match with the Boston fighter in July.

Johnson meets Tony Ross, the Italian battering ram, in Pittsburg to-morrow night, in a six-round bout, and will make reply to the telegram until that meeting is over.

It is not thought likely that his reply will be in the affirmative as he does not consider the Boston fighter much more than a joke as a fighter, and he is not going through drawing card to make the journey worth while.

While it is not believed the black champion will have much trouble securing the decision over Ross, the big Italian may spring a surprise such as comes to every fighter occasionally.

HARVARD TRAINING QUARTERS, Red Top, Ct., June 20.—There was a great contrast in the weather to-day, a strong northwest wind kicking up a good sea. The morning's work was as light as usual. When the crews came in from the boathouse this morning they rowed down to the cove and lined up for an official photograph.

The varsity eight and freshmen eight accompanied by Coach Wray in his single, went to the mile and one-half flag and tried a few starts and light rowing. The varsity four went to Navy Yard and back, a slow, easy stretch.

Referee Mehlehorn, Coach Kennedy, and Captain Howe, held a conference at Yale's quarters to-day in reference to the Freshman four race, the Yale freshman four being short a man on account of Kerr taking Smith's place in the eight.

The long, slow course have been placed and the captains will meet and flip for choice of courses to-morrow.

The entire squads came down to the telegraph office to get the returns from the Yale-Harvard game being played at New Haven.

All the oarsmen are in fine physical condition and fit to row the race to-day. The extreme heat of the last week or so took a little weight off some of the men, but by Wednesday they will all be back to normal weight again.

Among the visitors at Red Top were C. H. Burr, '09, captain of last year's football team; T. S. Bilmer, '10, winner of the quarter-mile in the intercollegiate; E. Hartman, '09; P. Hulde Hooper, '09; W. Grosvenor, '09; C. Schweppe, '09. Harvard representatives on the regatta committee; J. L. Saltonstall, '09, manager of the freshman crew that year; David Goodrich, '96; captain of the '96 crew; Percy Higgins, '00, captain of the '00 varsity crew; Murray Forbes of the '00 varsity, and Nick Biddle, '00, also an ex-varsity oarsman.

BUSINESS MEN TAKE OVER BALL TEAM

BANGOR, Me., June 20.—The Bangor Baseball Association, made up of prominent business men, has been organized to take over the Bangor baseball team of the Northern Maine League, which up to this time has been owned and managed by Fred Tiost, who will continue as field manager. The officers of the new association are:

Hosea B. Buck, president; Charles J. Rice, treasurer, and Fred Tiost, manager; George E. Wescott, Charles L. Snow, Irving Watson, Charles L. Jones, Hubbard Leavitt, Charles A. Robbins, J. Herbert Boyd and F. E. Bragg, directors.

MAYOR BARS JEFF'S BOUT

WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 20.—Mayor Lewis F. Kniffen has decided that Jim Jeffries and his sparring partner, Sam Berger, will not be permitted to give a sparring exhibition here to-night. They are billed to appear at the Luserne Theatre and to box four rounds.

Mayor Kniffen says that Jeffries can give an exhibition of his training methods, with the exception of putting on gloves with an opponent.

A few weeks ago he prohibited boxing matches here and he says now that he will not discriminate between local amateurs and traveling professionals. Jeffries' managers and the local sports who want to see the big fellow in action are doing all they can to induce him to change his mind.

GOLF GOSSIP
NEWS OF THE LINKS

It seems good to see Max Stanton back at golf again this year. When he was at Dartmouth two years ago he was a member of their team and one of the best amateurs in Massachusetts. Besides being the Massachusetts team in the Leslie cup matches at that time. He joined Albemarle this year and was a close second in the open tournament at this course on last Saturday with a card of 83.

Several of the good professional golfers got out to Woodland yesterday for practice for the open Massachusetts meeting that starts on Wednesday of this week and consists of 72 holes medal play for prizes aggregating $150.

J. G. Anderson of Woodland will not compete in the open meeting this year, as he leaves to-night for the other side on the Olympia. With the professionals out of course he would have a very small show, but over his home course he would be liable to make some very good scores. His card of 71 at Wollaston in the match between Massachusetts and Connecticut was the best score on that course this year.

The Commonwealth has offered the use of its links to the schoolboy golfers who have championship aspirations in that line. The team matches this year should make this meeting one of the best in the history of this organization.

There has been a great deal of talk in regard to getting the Country Club and the Commonwealth Country Club teams together in the Sectional matches. Many of the members of each club go away during the Summer months and so it would be advantageous to both clubs to have the match as soon as possible. After the team has once been organized it takes considerable time and effort to get them together again at a time that is convenient for all.

J. G. Thorpe, the runner-up in this year's amateur championship, lost a very hard match to Arthur Knight in the semi-finals of State team match to L. C. Smith, after five extra holes had been played.

KUBIAK DEFEATS REED.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 20.—Al Kubiak, the Michigan giant, easily beat Jack Reed of Toledo at the West End A. C. At the opening of the final round Reed appeared stronger, but toward the end he weakened, and when the bell ended the bout he was hanging on in a helpless condition. The semi-windup, between Joe Heffernn and Johnny White, was stopped in the first round, neither boy showing any speed.

HYLAND ADDS NEW PUNCH TO RING HISTORY

By TAD.

NEW YORK, June 20.—Dick Hyland's overhand right was the punch that puffed out Leach Cross's jaw and started him on the road to defeat.

That same overhand right is the most vicious punch used by boxers to-day. Young Corbett brought it out to Frisco with him when he stopped Eddie Hanlon in sixteen rounds.

He rushed at Eddie with his head down, and Eddie, not knowing whether he was to be pummeled about the body or the jaw, kept his head up watching. Bang, it dropped over on his cheek, cutting it open. Another hit Eddie between the eyes. You can never judge the things at all.

By the time the sixteenth round came Eddie was a sight to behold. His face was all swollen and cut, his eyes closed and he was so weak that the referee stopped it.

Now Dick Hyland has taken hold of the punch. A short fellow can use it to perfection. With head lowered, he reaches over and bumps his opponent, cutting and tearing with the downward drop of the wrist. Cross could never get away from it. Round after round in that fight we read:

Hyland staggers Cross with an overhand right. He might have missed other punches; he might have hit wrong with some, but that overhand right always got in its deadly work.

We will have to put that ripping punch down in history with other famous blows used by fighters.

McCoy's corkscrew left that jolted a man as an earthquake is one. Battling Nelson's liver punch, that slam of the right-hand side of the body, is another. In his book Nelson tells the history of that blow. Martin Canole pulled it on him in Minneapolis, and the Dane squealed like a hog round it hurt him so. He says Canole thought he was kidding, but he was squealing for wind all the time.

Jimmy Coffroth announced in San Francisco that he expects Stanley Ketchel and Billy Papke to draw not less than a $25,000 house when they clash in their twenty-round battle for the middleweight championship on the afternoon of July 4. "Papke made such short work of Hugo Kelly," said Coffroth, "that I am sure the people will turn out in droves to see him fight Ketchel."

Drexel Biddle, the millionaire boxer of Philadelphia, who has been acting as the champion society boxer, has met his match in a young society man of New York who was previously unknown. Young Otto, the athletic lightweight, and Bill Harler of Olean Falls, N. Y., have been matched to meet for ten rounds on Thursday night before the Knickerbocker A. C. of Olean Falls, N. Y. Otto's recent victories over good men as Terry Martin, Charley Hitts, Christy Williams and many others stamp him as having a good chance to beat the up-State middleweight.

Former pugilist Billy Rifft, who saw the error of his ways and became that he has not touched liquor for two years, has been appointed private secretary to Alfred Hess, head of a big printing company in Utah. Just what private secretary to a printing company means Billy has not figured out yet, but he says he has been duly installed upon his reformation in the sporting goods section of a department store in Chicago.

* * *

Edward W. Blandford and Benjamin Cross, promoters of boxing contests at Indianapolis, were indicted by the grand jury for attending a prize fight. Another indictment charges them with assault and battery on Freddie Cox, one of the fighters, who appeared several times on the alleged boxing card. Fred Murphy, another of the fighters who was taken up at the instance of Governor Marshall, is now in jail in this city. The indictments mean the end of the prize fighting in Indiana, it is believed.

* * *

Out in Frisco they are also enjoying a hot spell, and Young Corbett is not going to let the heat bother him. Corbett expects to be at the lightweight limit when he next hooks up with Johnny Frazer at Coffroth's club.

BOSTON AMERICANS DOUBLE-HEADER IN

Our Pets in Need of Man's Charity

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

"THE following letter has been received relative to a matter which has occupied the attention of humane-minded people for many years, and which has caused pain and indigestion in many communities, each season, when the exodus of Summer and Winter resorters takes place.

A woman in this neighborhood has a nice little dwelling, and a fine dark brown cat, a thorough house pet, timid to a degree as to nobody.

The girl loved and fed it, petted it, protected it from weather and neighborly baiting, and seemed to love it dearly. But when the girl is away the woman is very unkind to the cat. She is one of those thin, long-nosed women who clean house incessantly and always has a broom in her hand.

In April she turned the poor cat out with the broom, shut doors and windows, and kept her out during the cold rainstorms that persisted at that time.

Being a house pet the cat knew nothing outside of the place, so simply hung around staring at the house. Her pitiful pleading without cry of any kind, and her fruitless trials to gain doors and windows, was pathetic in the extreme.

When the woman a little note, very kind, saying that whenever she was going away, or for any reason wanted to get rid of her cat, to send her to the Humane Society.

Cat Left to the Elements

No change was made, and the weather growing more severe, sleep broken by thought of the little sufferer, I accepted a trip away, in the hope that something would happen before return. On return, the daughter was there, petting, feeding; opening doors and caressing continued, and I supposed that ended it.

A few days ago the daughter again left, and the cat is again forever out of house and home. Now the woman and her husband have gone off somewhere.

What can be done in such a case? Of course, we know that a woman who would so treat a poor dependent creature would commit crime—that she will one day have certain punishment for this cruelty, that she will never be happy, but all that does not help the cat.

What would you say to do, and how could such a woman be reached? She is not of the common or foreign class, but a typical New England housewife sharpened perhaps by trouble or worry.

There is nothing which can be done in such a case unless one goes to the trouble of finding who is the spiritual adviser of such a woman, seeking the man, and trying to awaken him to a sense of his responsibility in the matter.

A movement is now on foot to have an "Animal Sunday" in all the churches of the land.

The idea was suggested by the editors of "Our Dumb Animals," the organ of the Massachusetts S. P. C. A. The great and good man, the late George T. Angell, founded this paper and for forty years was its editor.

"Animal Sunday" in the Pulpits

"Animal Sunday" will be a day when, once a year at least, a sermon will be preached from every pulpit on the duty of man toward his dumb brothers.

Meantime, the S. P. C. A. and the Humane Associations ought to work for a law which will make it a finable offense for any woman to leave an animal uncared for in the manner described above.

It would be tenfold more merciful to take such a pet to the nearest veterinary to be chloroformed.

As We Sow, We Shall Reap

Could such people be taught the law of Cause and Effect, which is named "Karma"; and learn the fact, that as they sow they must reap; and as they starve, threat or neglect any living thing, so they must suffer from ill use and neglect in later incarnations, it would help along the reform.

But while they are waiting for these results, the poor cats and dogs are suffering; and all we can do about it is to keep agitating the subject, urge people between law, and the clergy, and the newspapers, the day may arrive when there is no self-respecting man or woman who will abuse (through commission of cruelty or omission of care) the dumb creatures given into the charge of human beings.

"Stand and Deliver"

By Nell Brinkley

Cupid the Highwayman and His Band of Merry Men

"And he whistles shrill to his bandits when the Bachelor-Stage comes into view"

THERE is the time of the year when romance runs in thick and fast of the crimes of the oldest bandit in the world. Nobody can catch him and hold him. A few have bowled him over and left him for dead—but he was only dead for them; he only played possum; and here he has come whooping up in another part of the country—immortal—smiling—possessed of nine squillion times nine lives—a ravisher and a raider.

Moonlight is his pet time for a hold-up—but he's just as liable as anything to step out of the bushes in the road, naked and unashamed and furious, in the broad daylight, and rob you of your heart.

Hearts—it's always hearts. He abides at money.

Strangely enough, though, it makes a special "never mind" to him whether you are rich or poor in coin, for, like Robin Hood, he takes from the rich to give to the poor. He robs all alike of their hearts and their senses—but he takes contentment and peace and his gifts of deep love away from the folk that are rolling in greenbacks and turns it over lavishly to the poor.

The Bachelor-Stage is his favorite victim! His soul is utterly steeped in diabolical bliss when he sights it rolling over the hill loaded down with the jolly little bachelors who think he is a myth and are not afraid.

He whistles shrill to his bandits and throws them across the road, giggling and whispering and daring and debonaire—shoots his black "banshnafts" across his baby face and straddles the road, mighty, unconquerable, on his fat rubber-legs. And the coast is too smiffy to tell.

Sometimes a stage gets past him—but it's just the same for the crowing bachelors as if they had met a witch in the road! You know about them. When you got away from them they got it back on you by sending a black curse after you. You didn't do yourself any good.

And this Road Agent is just the same. He puts a taboo on you, and you get crabbed and crusty and lonesome when you're old and you wish he had caught you. Um-hum.

Oh! course he robs the women, too—but they're all on his side and they hand over their hearts with a song on their lips. The men folk are more fun—they fight. But, oh my, they fall hard when he DOES pull 'em off the top of the stage on the road to their happy home—Bachelor's Inn.

So this bold, bad countryside robber sports a band of all the girls in the world, loyal to him and hand-in-glove with all his crimes.

Cupid's out this month with blood in his eye.

Can She Pick Her Husband's Pockets?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THE other day a number of women were discussing the time-worn question: "Has a wife the right to take money out of her husband's pocket?"

Being an unmarried woman, I naturally took no part in the conversation; nevertheless, I was an amused and interested listener, and I had my opinions on the subject, even if I had no right to voice them.

I did make one timid attempt to speak, but was met with a chorus of "You don't know what you are talking about; you are an independent woman, and don't have to ask a man for every cent you spend." So I kept silent and meditated thankfully upon my lofty and independent state.

With one exception the matrons sadly concluded that they had no right, however great the temptation, to rifle the pockets of their lords and masters.

This Woman Says "Yes"

The exception was a spirited little matron, who stoutly maintained that if the husband was not generous in money matters, the wife had the right to help herself.

"Any woman," she argued, "who is a good wife and capable housekeeper, does her share toward building the fortune, and she should have her share of the proceeds. I know of one man who frequently goes to the club, and always takes too much to drink. When he comes home his wife empties his pockets, and I think she has a perfect right to do so."

It does not conjure up a very pretty picture, the sight of a husband under the influence of drink and a wife taking money from his pockets, does it?

I do not know but that in such circumstances the wife has the right to do so.

The average clubman spends far more on himself than he is willing to allow his wife to spend on herself.

No Woman Should Have to Beg

All that a woman asks of a husband is that he shall provide for her and his children and treat her with the honor and respect due a wife and mother. Man, however, demands that his wife shall be wife, mother, housekeeper, good manageress, companion and caterer to his comfort.

It seems a rather unequal partnership.

It is outrageous that a woman should have to humbly beg for the money that is half hers by right.

Of course, the man is the one who actually earns the money; but who can deny that the prudent woman does her full share of helping build the fortune?

It is far better that the wife should have an allowance in keeping with her husband's income. I know woman who go shabby rather than ask their husbands for money.

Like a Slave from Her Lord

Sometimes, a man awakens to the fact that his wife is shabbily dressed, and he magnificently hands her a sum of money with an air of conferring the greatest boon upon her. And she foolishly takes it in the spirit in which it is given.

Some Signs That Are Unfailing

"YOU'RE wasting an awful lot of good time," remarked the girl who likes to talk, breaking in on the animated discussion that was raging. "It would be perfectly easy to decide whether Carnaby is engaged to Marian or not by a little observation instead of this wild speculation."

"Well, is he?" chorused the arguers defiantly.

"I'm sure of it. I was sure of it the evening I sat next her at a dance and Carnaby settled down beside her with a sigh and said, 'Well, what have you been doing with yourself all day?'

"Now, that seems a harmless remark until you begin to think about it, and then you are forced to the conclusion that there isn't a man on earth who gives a rap about what a girl occupies her time with unless he's in love with her.

What He Will Do

"If he happens to be in love with you, he will listen tactfully to your explanation of a new crochet stitch or a recital of your troubles with the dressmaker and will beg for more details. If he is jealously inclined he will make some sarcastic remark that you've not accounted for twenty minutes or so early in the afternoon. What were you doing then?

"Always there is lurking within his soul terrible fear that you've been motoring with some man he hates or writing letter to a masculine friend of yours is out of town or thinking of someone else instead of himself.

Then darling, fluttered at the idea that is intensely interested in whatever she does or does, beams tenderly on him and artlessly rehearses her day's program.

"That is, she does if she is too young to know any better. If she is wiser she will say something like this: 'Well, I tried to study my French this morning, but I didn't get much done because you know I've five pictures of you on my desk and I looked at those one after the time. Do you know you have the dearest profile?

"Oh, after that—well, I was a little blue this afternoon. I got to wondering if I really appreciated you as much as you deserved, and I'm not sure, even now, I am brilliant enough to make you happy!'

The Kind of Talk He Wants.

"That's the kind of talk he really wants. He'd be horribly disappointed if darling told him the truth truth that she had lived and breathed and enjoyed the rest of the world extremely all day, and had been too busy with various things to give him a thought remember his existence now and then.

"Well, he doesn't go mooning around all day merely thinking of her, does he? Where'd his loudness be if he did? Yet he vows that she has never left his thoughts a minute, when he knows better all the time.

"Well, it's six of one and half a dozen of the other, and they're both satisfied, so what's the difference?"

"But after the man's married," protested a listener, "don't you want to be bothered hearing his wife tell how she's wrecked with the cook or let down three tucks in Jennie's school dress and things like that."

"Oh, that's different," said the girl who likes to talk, "if you'll notice, his wife doesn't spend hours raving over his profile, either!"

Hints for the Hot Weather

By C. B. QUINCY

DO not consume alcohol with the idea that it will make you cool. It won't, although it may feel cool to the cooler.

If the thermometer is very high, put it in the icebox.

Even in the warmest weather, do not try to stop an electric fan with a reflective finger.

Remember to dress sensibly. A stiff linen collar is indispensable.

Do not become excited. If hit by a motor car do not shake your fist after it, but sit quietly on the curb and recite like a soothing verses. If your business goes bust, don't worry about it; remember you have so much less to bother about.

When bathing in very hot weather, be careful not to rescue any drowning person. Such exertion is exhausting and dangerous.

Sit on the shady side of the subway car.

Poker is a safe hot weather amusement, if you are subject to cold feet.

Do not exert yourself to catch a cold.

Pretend to yourself that you are cool. Only don't do it too realistically or some sweltering friend may smite you with an envious pouch.

But the simplest and best plan is to take a yacht and no north for three months.

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

All Paris was wildly excited by the mystery of The Yellow Room, in which an attempt had been made to assassinate the beautiful and gifted Mlle. Stangerson, who aided her father in scientific research in an ancient chateau in the woods outside of Paris.

On the night of the tragedy Mlle. Stangerson worked with her father till midnight and then retired to her bedroom in the tower. Daddy Jacques heard her lock the door of the Yellow Room and talk a few minutes to her father. At 1 o'clock, when Jacques and Monsieur Stangerson were in the laboratory, there were sounds of a terrific struggle in the Yellow Room and Mlle. Stangerson was heard crying, "Murder! Help!"

Immediately afterward revolver shots rang out, and the sounds of the struggle continued for some time, then all was silent.

Joseph Rouletabille sent by the Epoque, a Paris newspaper, to solve the mystery, learns that when the Yellow Room was broken open Mlle. Stangerson was found there alone, bleeding from a wound in the temple, made by a blow with a heavy section bone which lay on the floor.

The window blind was still fastened on the inside, and in her assailant's hand was the greatest mystery.

Rouletabille establishes that the assassin were her friend Ramuel Rouletabille, and by the young woman's fiance, Robert Darzac.

Rouletabille establishes that the assassin was disturbed in his work, but changed them for well-made false at the lake, where he got rid of them in a skiff.

At the Donjon inn, Rouletabille shows strange interest in the innkeeper, by saying, "We shall meet next week." They meet the Grand Galet, Stangerson's forest keeper, and learn from "Mother" Angenoux that her home was like a "little Bon Dieu," did not cry at the chateau the night of the tragedy, but admits she heard a similar sound cry from the outside.

Frederic Larsan, a noted Parisian detective, refuses to give his opinion of the mystery until the examining magistrate calls all the witnesses in the laboratory. It is proven there is no secret passage or cavity in the Yellow Room. Professor Stangerson, father, Daddy Jacques and his daughter Marthe (the latter half an accomplice) are all examined. Rouletabille finds a bullet in the wall, and Frederic Larsan says before the tragedy his daughter had broken off the engagement.

The examining magistrate has a motive for the crime and Rouletabille declares robbery was one of the motives.

CHAPTER XII.

Frederic Larsan's Cane.

IT was not until six o'clock that I left the chateau, taking with me the article hastily written by my friend in the little sitting room which Monsieur and his letter should be answered. Tell Robert Darzac had placed at our disposal. The reporter was to sleep at the chateau, taking advantage of the, to me, inexplicable hospitality offered him by Monsieur Robert Darzac, to whom Monsieur Stangerson, in that sad time, left the care of all his domestic affairs. Nevertheless he insisted on accompanying me to the station at Epinay. In crossing the park he said to me:

"Frederic is really very clever and has not belied his reputation. Do you know how he came to find Daddy Jacques's boots? Near the spot where we noticed the traces of the nest boots and the disappearance of the rough ones, there was a square hole, freshly made in the moist ground, where a stone had evidently been removed.

Larsan searched for that stone without finding it, and at once imagined that it had been used by the murderer with which to sink the boots in the lake.

"Fred's calculation was an excellent one, as the success of his search proves. Taat escaped me; but my mind was turned in another direction by the large number of false indications of his track which the murderer left, and by the measure of the black footmarks corresponding with that of Daddy Jacques's boots, which I had established without his suspecting it, on the floor of the Yellow Room.

"All which was a proof, in my eyes, that the murderer had sought to turn suspicion on to the old servant. Up to that point, Larsan and I are in accord, but no further. It is going to be a terrible matter; for I tell you he is working on wrong lines, and I—I must fight him with nothing!

I was surprised at the profoundly grave accent with which my young friend pronounced the last words.

He repeated:

"Yes—terrible! terrible! For it is fighting with nothing, when you have only an idea to fight with."

At that moment we passed by the back of the chateau. Night had come. A window on the first floor was partly open. A feeble light came from it as well as some sounds which drew our attention.

We approached until we had reached the side of a door that was situated just under the window. Rouletabille, in a low tone, made me understand that this was the window of Mademoiselle Stangerson's chamber.

The sounds which had attracted our attention ceased, then were renewed for a moment, and then we heard rattled away. We were only able to catch these words, which reached us distinctly, "My poor Robert!"—Rouletabille whispered in my ear:

"If we only knew what was being asked in that chamber, my inquiry would soon be finished."

Advice to the Lovelorn---By Beatrice Fairfax

SHOULD ANSWER LETTER.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

While visiting some months ago, I was introduced to a young man who had followed me home two months before I met him. He has no bad habits, and is quite comfortably off. Since coming home I received a letter from him saying he was thinking of settling down, and that I was the girl he would like to marry.

I do not care for him well enough to marry.

Now, Miss Fairfax, what I want to know is, should I answer his letter or not, and what answer should I give him? PERPLEXED

MOST certainly you should answer his letter. He wrote proposing marriage, blow the truth—that you do not care for him enough to marry him—that you are sorry to pain him, and that you hope that he will still be your friend.

STOP SENDING THEM

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of seventeen and I'm in love with a young man of nineteen. I meet him quite often and he is very friendly to me, and I love him very dearly, but I don't think he cares for me. I send him pocsies, but I never receive an answer. What would you advise me, should I stop sending them or not? READER.

YOU had better stop sending the postals. If you do not, he will think that you are running after him and you will never win his regard in that way. Be polite and unaffected in your manner and that will be the best way to win his friendship.

A MATTER OF COURTESY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

As you have helped me out once before with your kind advice, I am turning to you again.

The first part of August I am to be married. My fiance and I have had several disputes, whether it is proper to send a carriage for the minister or not, and who pays for it.

I am to be married at home.

E. S.

THERE is no necessity of sending a carriage for the minister, but it would be courteous to do so. Your father should pay for the carriage, but the bridegroom pays the minister's fee.

Extremes Meet.

REGINALD ALGERNON PERCIVAL SMITH

Was a clerk in a national bank,
His wages amounted to just "eighteen per,"
Which Reginald figured was rank;
For Reggie, like others at sweet twenty-one,
Had a girl whom, of course, he adored;
But, although she was pensive, her tastes were expensive,
And sometimes poor Reggie was floored.

ONE Saturday night, when young Reggie was paid,
He said to his sweetheart: "We will Go to a show, and then after the play
We'll sup, and we won't mind the bill."
So theatreward Reggie and girlie set out
(Four dollars they charged for the seats);
And after the show Reggie said: "We will go
To a place where they deal out 'swell eats.'"

THE waiter was gracious, the waiter was kind,
He had everything right at hand;
He "waited" so nicely that Reginald's girl
Declared that "the waiter was grand."
So, after the "eats" Reggie gratefully gave,
Besides what he paid for the meal,
Two dollars to him who had waited on them—
Which for Reginald was a good deal.

NEXT morning poor Reggie, with fifty cents left
Ate breakfast where signs read "Quick Lunch."
The face of the man who sat opposite him
Gave Reggie a horrible hunch.
"I've seen you before," Reggie said with a frown,
"I'm certain of the same."
On the tip that you gave me last night."

URBAN BISCUITS

The larger a city the smaller the biscuits. In the country biscuits are frequently met that are as big as feather beds, but in a large city they are but small in show and are swallowed like pills.—Atchison Globe.

Assorted Smiles

A MAN in workman's garb one day called at a local dentist's, and the door was opened by a maid.

Workman—Is the gent in that draws the teeth?

Servant—No, sir, but I expect he will be in shortly.

Workman (pausing on doorstep)—Does he give gas?

"Yes."

"What does he charge?"

"One dollar."

"What! One dollar? Do you mean to say, miss, a fellow's got to swallow over 1,000 feet of gas to have one tooth pulled out? No fear; I reckon I knows a bit about it, for I work down at the gas works myself. I'll go to another dentist and have it pulled out without gas."

ISABEL—I'll never have another photograph taken.

Dorothy—Why not, dear?

Isabel—Oh, if it looks like me I don't like it, and if it flatters me my friends don't like it.

DOUGLAS JERROLD was on one occasion debating with a friend the respective merits of two contemporaries. The argument had been long, and, thinking to conclude it by a compromise, the friend remarked:

"Well, after all, they both row in the same boat."

"But not with the same skulls," rejoined Jerrold.

To-Day's Best Story

T was in Paris. The loquacious guide was exhibiting to the interested Yankee tourist the tomb of Napoleon with all the customary flourishes of both speech and hands.

"This immense sarcophagus," declaimed the guide, "weighs forty tons. Inside of that is a case of steel, steel receptacle weighing twelve tons, and inside of that is a leaden casket, hermetically sealed, weighing over two tons. Inside of that rests a mahogany coffin containing the remains of a great man."

For a moment the Yankee was silent as if in deep meditation. Then he said: "It seems to me that you've got him all right. If he ever gets out, cable me at my expense."

THE MYSTERY OF THE YELLOW ROOM

By Gaston Leroux

changing courtesies. What was my astonishment to see on the slippery column of the tree two human forms appear and quietly slip down to the ground. Rouletabille had mounted alone, and had returned with another.

"Good evening, Monsieur Sinclair?"

It was Frederic Larsan. The detective had evidently occupied the post of observation when my young friend had thought to reach it alone. Neither betrayed my secret. I explained that to myself by the fact that they must have been witnesses of some tender and reassuring scene between Mademoiselle Stangerson, lying in her bed, and Monsieur Darzac on his knees by her pillows.

I guessed that each had drawn different conclusions from what they had seen. It was easy to see that the scene had strongly impressed Rouletabille in favor of knowing Robert Darzac, while to Larsan it showed nothing but consummate hypocrisy, acted with talented art by Mademoiselle Stangerson's dance.

As we reached the park gate Larsan stopped us.

"My cane!" he cried. "I left it near the tree."

He left us, saying he would rejoin us presently.

"Have you noticed Frederic Larsan's cane?" asked the young reporter as soon as we were alone. "It is quite a new one, which I have never seen him use before. He seems to take great care of it—he never leaves him. One would think he was afraid it might fall into the hands of strangers. I never see it by day."

Theatres and Parks Attract Great Crowds

Two scenes in an absorbing pantomime at Keith's provide one of the most entertaining novelties that vaudeville patrons have enjoyed in a long time. The piece is entitled "In an Artist's Studio," and is presented with Mlle. Dazie as the star. This petite and graceful dancer was accorded a cordial and flattering welcome, for the piece is a hard test of the dramatic powers of the players, all of whom convey the emotions of the characters they represent while dancing. The sketch is staged elaborately, and there are nine show girls in the piece besides Mlle. Dazie.

The bill this week at Keith's is strong throughout. Ben Johnson, the original Jimsey of "Paid in Full," wins favor in his monologue, impersonating several well-known actors. Ed Wynn and Al Lee have some college boys' stunts, and the "Bounding Gordons" put on a grotesque act.

Cunningham and Marion are entertaining as acrobatic comedians; Edmund Stanley and company give an operetta, "Love's Garden"; Natalie and Annie Dagwell sing the old-time melodies; the Van der Koors are seen in a clever series of illusions; Chalk Saunders pleases with his crayons, and Dubsbaunt and his dogs are entertaining to young and old.

Orpheum.

The four-act play "Sapho," from the novel by Alphonse Daudet, is being given this week at the Orpheum by the Lindsay Morison players. The play is staged on an extensive scale and the version used follows closely the plot of the French novelist. The players give a very creditable performance and their work shows careful preparation.

The piece provides ample opportunity for the company, especially in the parts taken by Miss Edna Bruns and Howard Russell. Miss Bruns has attracted considerable attention from theatregoers, and her playing of Sapho is another proof of her ability. She displayed skill in contrasting widely the many-sided nature of Sapho calls for, and it was her first opportunity for forceful and dramatic acting.

Mr. Hansel's work as Jean Gaussin was strong, and in the love scenes he was impressive. James Seeley showed his versatility in the closing act when Flaubert and Sapho are reconciled. The other principal parts were Walter Walker as Uncle Cassaure; Mary Sanders as Francine de Naugis; Rose Morison as Mme. Hetteau, and Wyrley Birch as Dechelette.

Castle Square.

This is the second and final week of "Floradora" at the Castle Square Theatre. Mr. Craig will close the house Saturday night for the Summer and for a well-earned rest for himself and his company. Last night another crowded house applauded Mr. Carleton, Miss Mary Young, Miss Lou-ise LeBaron, Mr. Meek and the other principals in the favorite old musical comedy. The solo singing and the work of the double sextet were applauded warmly. The production, with the benefit of all last week's presentations, has acquired extra smoothness, making it one of the most successful efforts of this season for Mr. Craig and his players.

Globe.

The vaudeville olio at the Globe Theatre this week includes the Hart-Nestle Company in a comedietta, "The Chappies' Visit," with singing, dancing and impersonations, by Mr. Hart of "Great Men Past and Present." The Todd-Nard Duo are presenting athletic stunts. Adams and Hart are lively wooden shoe steppers. Nancy Hart, little portrayer of several boyish characters. Jack Cambrie and Florence Mann have one pictorial numbers. The entire bill is one of the best at the Globe this summer. There will be a change in the song and picture part of the bill Thursday.

Park.

The phenomenal run of "The Traveling Salesman" at the Park Theatre is approaching its end. This is the final week of the Forbes comedy in Boston. The title role is taken by Mark Smith, the "Iron Stake" of the play. His infectious humor, shrewdness and all around good qualities make his part delightful. The supporting company is excellent and those of the distressing weather the piece has drawn big houses.

Bowdoin Square.

In "Enemies for Life," the melodrama at the Bowdoin Square Theatre for this week, the plot hinges on two wills left by John Wellington. A murder is committed by Lord Hawksley, who compels his supposed daughter to believe she committed the deed. In a series of thrilling incidents the plot is finally unraveled and the guilty are punished. Charlotte Hunt and Fred Van Rensselaer handle the leading parts admirably. James Barrett and Sadie Hilton as the schemers are strong. The rest of the stock company members are capable in the other roles. A series of entertaining motion pictures is given in connection with the play.

New Palace.

Small, Sloane and Sherman, the international comedy singers and characters, are a feature of this week's bill at the New Palace Theatre. Other acts include

A Square Deal for Daughter

"In These Days Not to Teach a Woman Some Way by Which She Can Support Herself Is Criminally Cruel"

By Dorothy Dix

ONE of the most curious and theepicable things in the world is the injustice with which parents treat their daughters.

There is no better illustration than in the attitude that the average father and mother assume toward their boys and girls who are just now returning from school, ready to begin the serious business of life.

Indubitably there is no difference in the affection that the parents feel for their children; assuredly they equally desire that their boys and girls shall be happy and successful in the world; perhaps they are even a little bit more anxious and fearful for the future of their daughters than they are of their sons, yet they start to work systematically and seriously and sensibly to prepare the boy for life, which they leave the girl's fate to chance.

The Girl Is Let Neglected

If the family is poor, or in moderate circumstances, the father sees to it that the son is put in some way of learning a business of profession. If the family is rich the con is trained to take care of the money that he will inherit.

But nobody lifts a finger to try to fit the girl for the battle of life wherein she, too, must fight, and by her own strength and strategy either become victor or vanquished.

If she is a poor girl, instead of fitting her for some occupation by which she can earn an honest living, eighty times out of a hundred her family throw all sorts of obstacles in her way, even when she tries to do something for a livelihood. If she belongs to a rich family she is simply given money to waste, instead of being taught how to manage it.

Her father has taught her brother how to take care of his fortune, but he leaves her to the mercy of thieves and robbers.

Lambs for the Ruthless to Shear

It is common observation that money slips through a woman's fingers like water through a temperature, and when we hear that Miss Amanda's father has left her $100,000, or that the Widow Jones has received a $75,000 insurance policy on the late lamented, we begin to speculate as to whether Miss Amanda will buy gold bricks with her money or lend it without security to Cousin Silas, who is so eloquent in prayer, while as for the Widow J., we know her to be the fore-ordained prey of the executor of her husband's will.

Yet neither of these women is a fool. On the contrary, they are extremely sensible and level-headed about the things they know, and the only reason they make flocks and drakes of their fortunes is because they have never been taught anything about money.

What the Woman May Face

There is nothing so mysterious about ordinary business transactions that any girl out of the feeble minded institute can't understand them, and the father who does not teach his daughter the elementary principles of handling money, and make her wise to the effects of signing her name on papers that she has not read, is failing very far short of his duty.

The very best post-graduate course that any girl could be given would be a year in her father's office.

The son of a family is safeguarded against want by being taught some sort of a trade by which he can support himself. The majority of girls are not. We take a long shot at their marrying. Sometimes they do, and sometimes they don't, but even if they do marry it is no guarantee against want.

"Even if a girl does marry, her mother does not take the trouble to prepare her for it. Yet every woman knows that happiness and success in matrimony depend mainly upon the wife knowing her business, being a good manager, a good housekeeper, a good cook.

No father sets his son out to practice law or medicine without having studied the science of it, yet a mother will let her daughter marry without having taught her the first thing about how to run a home. And she is actually surprised when the ignorant, unprepared girl comes to grief.

It isn't fair, it isn't just, it isn't kind to send a poor, little, helpless girl out into the world to ruin her chances of happiness and success through ignorance.

Give daughter a square deal.

Society Opens Its Purse Strings to the Poor

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

Never before in the social history of Boston has society—the real cream of the smart set—been known to take such an active interest in the welfare of the poor unfortunate little urchins of the city. Among the latest of the socially elect to hold out a helping hand to "the little children of the poor" is the handsome young matron, Mrs. Winthrop Chanler Thayer, who has just purchased the large Mead farm in Natick which she intends making into a home for the poor children of Boston during the hot weather. The farm will accommodate eighteen or twenty children at a time, and every detail in the plans for their comfort is being looked after by Mrs. Patten herself.

Mrs. Patten is the daughter of Nathaniel Thayer and a sister of the Countess von Moltke and of the young Countess Cassini, Sally Paget. The Pattens are at present at Lancaster with Mr. Thayer, but will go later to Newport for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson, who have been doing considerable entertaining at their estate, "Weld," in Brookline since their recent return from Washington, are planning to spend the greater part of the Summer in their house-boat off the Beverly coast. They have planned many delightful entertainments to take place on board. A welcome addition to the North Shore Summer colony is the winsome young bride, Mrs. John Gardner Coolidge (Helen Stevens), who with Mr. Coolidge has just returned from a honeymoon trip. They have taken a cottage there for the season.

One of the late June weddings is that of Miss Mabel Crocker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar M. Crocker of Belmont, and Edwin N. C. Barnes of Symphony Chambers, Boston. The marriage took place at ten o'clock yesterday morning at the home of the bride's parents. The Rev. J. Stanley Durkee, Ph. D., performed the ceremony. Miss Marion Crocker, sister of the bride, attended as maid of honor, and the best man was Wilford D. Gray of Woburn. A trip of the honeymoon will be spent with the parents of the bridegroom in New Brunswick, and about the middle of July the young couple will sail from Quebec for Europe, where Mr. Barnes is to study during a part of the Summer.

They would change, as did you, if they only knew how delicious these new foods are.

The Foods of Today

These puffed foods, invented by Prof. Anderson, are distinctly the foods of today.

We make sixteen cereal foods, including all the old-time fads. So we have no bias whatever.

But we know the public taste. Three people in four, where all cereals are offered, take either Puffed Wheat or Puffed Rice.

These are the foods that people want. They will adopt them as fast as they learn of them.

But people don't know what they miss until some friend says, "Try those delightful puffed foods."

Say it to someone today.

How the Grains are Puffed

This is the curious process:

The whole wheat or rice kernels are put into sealed guns. Then the guns are revolved for sixty minutes in a beat of 550 degrees.

That fierce heat turns the moisture in the grain to steam, and the pressure becomes tremendous.

Then the guns are unsealed—the steam explodes. Instantly every starch granule is blasted into a myriad particles.

The kernels of grain are expanded eight times—made four times as porous as bread. Yet the coats are unbroken, the shapes are unaltered. The result is crisp, magnified kernels of grain.

The Digestible Foods

Puffed Wheat and Puffed Rice are curious, crisp and enticing. But the best fact is that these foods are digestible.

The starch granules are literally blasted to pieces, so the digestive juices act instantly. There is no tax on the stomach.

No other known method—cooking, baking or toasting—ever made cereal foods half so digestible.

It is good to know that the foods you all like best are also the best foods for you.

For Summer breakfasts, luncheons or suppers, these are the ideal foods. Serve with cream, or with fruit, or with a bowl of milk. People never grow tired of them—never seem to get enough.

Do Colleges Lead American Youth Astray?

By CHARLES FERGUSON.

BISHOP M'FAUL'S attack upon the universities receives a widespread public notice because of the venerable religious institution that he represents.

But it turns out that the authority upon which the Bishop bases his criticism of the colleges is certain articles by Harold Bolce in the Cosmopolitan Magazine.

This is flattering to a notable writer and to a great publication, though it leaves room for the calling of other witnesses.

Indeed, it may turn out upon further examination that the Bishop has misread his monthly, and that the real point of Mr. Bolce's articles is wholly different from what the learned doctor thinks.

Mr. Bolce could hardly have intended to find fault with the great State and secular universities for not teaching the dogmatic forms of sectarian religion.

It is understood in this country that the schools and colleges supported by the public must have no sectarian bias.

The general feeling is that they should be non-religious, though pervaded by a spirit that is not inimical to religion.

Now, Mr. Bolce's exhibits go to show, not that the universities are hotbeds of immorality, but that they are coming to be pervaded by a wrong spirit—a spirit lacking in reverence and behalf I nlfe—and that this spirit is its outcrowding tendencies to do great harm to the youth of the country.

False ways of thinking may not immediately lead to moral ootiurey and licentiousness, but they are likely to do so in the long run.

It may happen, however, that the bad philosophy exorciated by Mr. Bolce may have no tendency at all toward the coarser and commoner kinds of immorality, yet have a more deadly effect in breeding a brutal pride of success—a callousness to the appeal of misery and misfortune and an irreducible antagonism between the rich and the poor.

In short, Mr. Bolce's articles may be sound, and the Bishop's commentary upon them entirely beside the mark.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS: FINANCIAL

WALL ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

WALL STREET, New York, June 29.—With the exception of a break or two due to the bad crop reports that must be expected from time to time, there is no reason for any decline in the market. The most conservative bankers are taking the position that they want the market quiet for two or three weeks, and it is their intention to start a campaign for higher prices just as soon as they are convinced the crops are through the crisis. Corn has not yet reached the critical stage, which comes when the ears are forming and the grains are in the milk. The general outlook is good, and the only reason extreme care is being taken this year to get started right is that the bull structure which they propose to raise will tower above all others ever erected by a frantic stock-gambling public.

Big money is looked for expecting a strong market are found in the continuous advance of steel materials of all kinds. The average advance has been more than $1 a ton from the level established in the old Copper metal is also firmer, and, while no sharp advance is expected in it, a steady improvement is looked for by the best authorities.

$ $ $

One of the best authorities on the corn crop is the Rock Island Railroad. The loss of this system traverses and cuts across the entire corn territory. For a fortnight the closest scrutiny of the fields has been made by the organization's crop inspectors. The result was expressed by President Winchell yesterday. "There never was such a corn crop prospect," he said. "For Board of Trade purposes there has been too much rain, but for the growing of a great corn crop and sunshine have alternated in an ideal manner. The yield will be the largest ever garnered."

Further export of gold from New York to the extent of $2,000,000 was announced, although the Bank of England secured $5,000,000 from Africa. This gold movement is beginning to worry bankers, who realize that it is caused by the Aldrich currency law. The ugly feature of it is that there is no way of stopping it. The gold is going abroad, not because it is needed there, but because of the depreciation of American money due to the slaughtermost of the gold standard and the substitution of the debts of corporations as security for bank notes.

Aside from this theoretical reason, which is all powerful, there is the practical reason that banks that usually accumulate about $750,000,000 every year to move the crops are only acquiring a nominal sum this year, because they know that when the time comes they can print $500,000,000 of Aldrich money. Thus the usual money stringency due to the crop-moving period will not overtake the Street this year. This point is liable to upset the bears. Nearly everybody in Wall Street is bearish just now. But the fundamental fact of the Aldrich currency law overshadows all other considerations.

All of which makes the further gold engagements yesterday insignificant. There is plenty of money to spare and plenty in sight, for Europe must turn a buyer of American foodstuffs at highly remunerative prices.

$ $ $

The strong feature of the market in Third Avenue stock. It has held firm about twenty points above its true value. This remarkable showing is due to the fact that a very large short interest exists in the issue. The shorts are afraid to start a covering movement because they find the stock has all been picked up by a large banking house. Therefore, the departure of Third Avenue from Wall Street may be as spectacular as some of its old performances.

When the Metropolitan Street Railway Company got control Third Avenue rose $50 a share in one day. The reorganization plan is not popular with persons who have figured it out, but the Interborough-Metropolitan evidently expects to obtain some great advantage out of the new deal, if the price of Interborough-Metropolitan preferred can be taken as evidence. That stock has made a new high record for the year, and the buying is from the best quarters.

Union Pacific holds steady, and, of course, will continue to do so, except for possible breaks due to bad crop news from time to time. The great plan of Harriman financing is fully matured, and as soon as the crops are out of danger some announcement is expected. James Hillman has returned from Europe to be here when the plan is put before the public. The feature of it will be the practical elimination of the Vanderbilts from the New York control. William K. Vanderbilt cannot tolerate the idea of occupying a secondary position in the Vanderbilt system, neither can F. H. Harriman. New York Central has some entanglements that may make trouble in the immediate future for those who attempt if carry its stock on margin, but the vacuum cars on hand are abundant, cash on hand are not worried. They argue that if New York Central has done so well under Vanderbilt management it ought to be as good as Union Pacific with Harriman in charge. It is unquestioned that it has most valuable franchise and topographical and geographical location of any railroad in America. The water grades of the New York Central are worth millions.

Buying of Wabash preferred is also becoming a mystery to the Street because it seems to be of such good character. Brokers familiar with operations on the floor say that they can do nothing in the issue when they attempt to trade in it, but that the minute any real stock comes on the market it is snapped up.

In Wabash preferred the shortage became clearly visible by the eagerness to have the stock. There are no "A" Wabash bonds outstanding. Of the "B" only $1,000,000 is extant. Voting power, therefore, is now confined to the preferred and common stock. As a net income available for dividends of nearly $2,000,000 is secured before payment on the preferred can be made, it may be assumed that a dividend long, resumed in mild form, is as much for voting purposes as on the prospect of immediate returns, provided that whoever acquires the Wabash, and the buying of late weeks have been for such purpose, does not at once guarantee something on the preferred.

The gross earnings for the first three weeks of the current month were $1,581,955, against $1,509,243 for the corresponding time a year ago, an improvement too slight to be considered as a dividend hope. While there is a traffic arrangement with the Lackawanna, the latter gets only a part of the freight business, and vice versa. With a complete interchange between the roads, or, in plainer terms, a consolidation, the Wabash's earnings would increase very largely, which might, Boston, but not guarantee, dividends. If the deal stipulated a present, the continuous purchases of the senior shares would be explicable, and this is no popular explanation.

Something must be stirring in Wabash; every observer is convinced of that, but not upon that. On the recent decline purchases doubled. Floors are not so frequently decorative, but is the tracing of orders means anything, people close to the Lackawanna either are acting on an inspired tip or have developed an affection for Wabash which is unaccountable.

ZINC FEATURE IN LOCAL LIST

STATE STREET, June 29.—There was more animation in the local stock market than of late, although it did not spread to the mining shares list to any extent. American Zinc was the market feature and rose almost a point, to 39¾, on active dealings. The new tariff will favor this commodity largely through the efforts of this company.

American Telephone was strong on purchases largely for New York account. The price rose 1 to 143, and New England Telephone rose 1¾ to 132 in sympathy. American Sugar Refining shares were favorably affected by the withdrawal of the government suit. The common advanced 2 to 127½, and the preferred 2½ to 124. Some covering in U. S. Steel put the price up to 67⅝.

Amalgamated, although dull, was strong and moved up ½ to 81⅝. It is ascertained that brokers' offices leave very little Amalgamated on hand, in fact not 10 per cent. of the amount they were carrying two years ago.

A one-dollar assessment is expected on Adventure mining shares shortly to carry on development work. Boston Elevated gross earnings the current month are expected to exceed those of last year by about $50,000. Oneoota mining directors have declared a semi-annual dividend of $4 a share, the same as six months ago.

Curb trading was of light volume, although the trend was apparently upward. Raven mining ran off to 31 cents and Bay State Gas sold under 40 cents.

TAFT IS AFTER CHINESE TRADE

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 29.—In view of the favorable conditions recently made in China's internal government, President Taft has mapped out a campaign that is intended to capture a lion's share of the rich trade of that country for the United States. This is believed by the fact that W. M. O. Dawson, former governor of West Virginia, will be commissioned July 1 to work in the China field as a commercial agent. It is the intention of the government to attach a corps of special commercial agents to the legation in Pekin. These agents will be under the immediate direction of Mr. Dawson. The creation of the corps is rendered necessary by the activities of other foreign nations throughout China and the scramble for business there is certain to become acute before many months have passed. The consular service in China is to be strengthened, and the successor to Minister Rockhill, who is to be Ambassador to Russia, will be selected with care.

WIFE OF BOSTON SALESMAN SUICIDE

WATERBURY, Ct., June 29.—Mrs. Emily V. Fuick, 29, wife of A. G. Fuick, 29, a traveling salesman for a Boston leather house, committed suicide by gas in her home at No. 107 Weathersfield avenue, Hartford, after stuffing up doors and windows. Her clothing was so arranged there was no doubt of premeditation. Her father died two months ago in Chicago, from which shock she never rallied. The wedding of the Fuicks in Chicago two years ago was kept secret from both families for nearly a year and caused surprise when it was made known.

BOMB IS HURLED AT SUFFRAGETTE

DES MOINES, Ia., June 29.—Angered by the bitter denunciation of men and their political methods by Miss Gertrude Vonpetzold, the noted English suffragette, an effort was made to murder the advocate of "woman's rights" when a small bomb was hurled into an automobile in which she was returning to her home from a meeting. Mrs. James Berry Hill, a society leader, who had introduced the noted lecturer, Lena Fuchs, were both badly shaken by the explosion, but all escaped death. The entire side and floor of the car was blown to pieces.

IT'S DELIGHTFULLY COOL ON THE CAPE

Those who are accustomed to pass their vacations at the tip end of Cape Cod declare that there is no such thing as the much-bruited heated term in that locality. While people in Boston and vicinity are sweltering with the heat, every one at Provincetown is delightfully comfortable. This will serve to account for the remarkable popularity of the steamer "Cape Cod," which makes daily trips, leaving No. 400 Atlantic avenue at 9 a. m. the morning. No liquors are sold on board and there is always a quiet company, to whom the music on every trip is always an attraction.

STEEL MOST ACTIVE ISSUE

By T. C. SHOTWELL.

NEW YORK, June 29.—The report that Harriman was enjoying good health was used as the basis for another upward movement in the stock market to-day. Standard railroad and industrial shares moved up an average of one point under leadership of Union Pacific, Steel common and the Rock Island issues.

Steel common was about the most active issue and rose seven-eighths of a point during the first half hour of trading. Rock Island common was also active and rose one point, while the preferred was three-quarters of a point higher. Other stocks to show improvement were Reading, Southern Pacific, Amalgamated and Smelters.

Trading shares were irregular. Interborough-Metropolitan preferred declined ¼ a point under profit-taking, while the common advanced a fraction. Third Avenue rose nearly a point. American Sugar was the feature of the group of specialties, it rose 2½ points on very light transactions.

In London American shares were quiet with only fractional changes.

On the New York curb market trading was very light and prices were practically unchanged. Lawson, Kerr Lake and Goldfield Consolidated were the most active issues.

BIG MENAGERIE IN LEXINGTON PARK

How many have fed the Teddy Bears at Lexington Park this year or divided their corncakes with the denizens of the monkey cage? Are you all aware that Lexington Park has the biggest menagerie in the country and that it is free to visitors once they gain admission to the park? Take notice then that most everything is free in Lexington Park once you are inside the gate and that the SUNDAY AMERICAN publishes a free ticket of park admission which may be clipped on Sunday and used on either of two days of the week. See the daily announcements and get the BOSTON AMERICAN every Sunday for the park tickets.

FOUR ARE INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

NEW YORK, June 29.—A big touring car containing two men and two women, running north at a rapid rate on Eastern boulevard early to-day, skidded at a sharp turn in the road at Pulham Parkway, reversed and collided with a tree, hurling the occupants a dozen feet. Jonathan Moore, Glenridge, N. J., owner of the car, received a fractured hip and Edgar Rothbridge, merchant of Orange, N. J., received a compound fracture of the right leg. BIG CROWD AT WONDERLAND

At the mammoth vaudeville show in Wonderland Park this week, for which the SUNDAY AMERICAN free tickets may be used today, are the celebrated performers Whitney and Bell, in a clever singing and dancing turn; the Vynos in a novelty instrumental act, and the Omega Trio in the screaming farce, "Sweetie's Finish."

This and most other Wonderland shows are also included in the SUNDAY AMERICAN ticket where for fifty cents one may enjoy park admission and ten of the leading attractions, on a plan that has been planned with favor from the opening of the park gates this season.

Wonderland is also making a specialty of fine fish dinners and broiled live lobsters to tempt the palate of an epicure. Special inducements are given excursionists and scarcely a day passes without the presence of some out of town organization to pleasure here. Trolley parties are being arranged from all over Central New England to the mammoth park of Wonderland, a park full of clean, safe delights unequaled elsewhere in this country.

Today the SUNDAY AMERICAN coupon crowds are visiting the park with a string of free tickets unexpired, and with them a daily newspaper, representing a saving of seventy cents and good afternoon or evening. Another list of free tickets will be published next Sunday, of which announcement will be made during the present week.

Once More the Question of Tipping Waiters

We Disagree ENTIRELY With Doctor Parkhurst, and With All of Those That Misunderstand an Important Question

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

Doctor Parkhurst, whose opinions we are glad to print, whether we agree with them or not, wrote a few days since on the question of "tipping" waiters.

After printing Doctor Parkhurst's opinions, we feel bound to tell our readers once more what the Boston American believes to be THE FACTS.

Doctor Parkhurst says—we condense:

"The custom of tipping originates with those who have more money than most. * * * The waiter considers a tip partly his due and partly a gift. * * *

"Tipping is neither business nor charity, but an irritation to the donor and a humiliation to the recipient. * * *

"Its whole tendency is to debase and to pauperize."

Doctor Parkhurst is mistaken.

The money that you give to the waiter is not a present, nor is it graft. Money given to a waiter who has worked for you is simply decent payment for good, consoientious work. The waiter isn't paid by his employer, he is paid by the men whom he serves. Waiters understand that thoroughly, and men that have traveled and studied conditions understand it.

Doctor Parkhurst is a student, a man who has lived closely at home. When he travels on his vacation, the tipping system comes to him as a surprise and an irritation. In addition he, like many other very good people, is probably not acquainted with the regular and reasonable customs of giving tips in Europe and elsewhere. He is perhaps made the victim of two kinds of American idiots—those that give too much, and those that give nothing.

In a first-class restaurant, the man who waits on you is a thoroughly trained employe. He must listen patiently while you display your ignorance of matters with which he is well acquainted. And he must be polite while you complain without just cause.

He is a man entitled at least to a payment of $5 a day, for he is a skilled workman.

His business and the rates of pay, or of "tips," as you call them, were established long before you were born. When the trained man who waits on you in a good restaurant took up that kind of work, he knew the system under which he was working. And when you GO INTO a good restaurant you are also expected to know the system under which good restaurants are managed.

The waiter is really a man IN BUSINESS FOR HIMSELF. Hundreds of the good waiters in a big city have their special clients, WHO ARE THEIR FRIENDS AS WELL AS THEIR CLIENTS.

A man educated in the customs of the world knows the value of an intelligent waiter. And he values the knowledge and the friendship of such a waiter.

When you pay the man that waits on you, you are not giving him a present. YOU ARE PAYING HIM FOR HIS WORK. If you do not like the system, you ought to keep out of the restaurants and hotels where such men are employed.

You wouldn't go to the Touraine Hotel and refuse to give the Touraine owners their usual charge for things that you order. You have no right to refuse the Touraine waiters, or any other waiters, THEIR USUAL AND WELL-ESTABLISHED CHARGE for the service they give you.

If you think that the restaurant owner ought to pay the waiter what he is worth, arrange things that way if you can. BUT IN THE MEANWHILE DON'T PLAN TO CHEAT THE WAITER. Leave off the extra piece of pie that clogs up your intestinal tract, skip the ice cream that stops digestion at the end of a meal, or do without the cigar or the extra drink. But don't plan to cheat the man that wais on you, and expects you to treat him fairly.

Our opinion is that as long as the restaurant system lasts, the present system under which the customer pays the waiter's wages will prevail.

So far from being debasing or humiliating, the system of payment to the waiter by the CUSTOMER makes the waiter in a sense an independent business man. If he is a good waiter, he gets good tips, because he has earned them, and his tables are always full. He satisfies his customers and helps to build up the business of his employer.

Many of the best waiters would not change the system if you offered to give them as a regular salary 20 per cent. MORE than the average that they earn under the present system. Every business man understands that. He would not give up the management of his business —the interesting element of UNCERTAINTY—if you offered him a salary bigger than his profits.

Uncertainty makes life interesting. The possibility of extra gain makes it possible for an educated, intelligent man waiting on a table to tolerate the ignorance, the complaints, foolish pride, and general "NEWNESS" of the average American rich since day before yesterday.

The system of tipping is necessary to the comfort of the customers that understand conditions. Those that object to the tips should simply and kindly keep away from the places where such payment is customary and regular.

P. S. pour les garcons.

Aujourd'hui, pour la vingtieme fois au moins, nous essayons d'expliquer cette question du pourboire, si peu comprise dans ce pays.

Nous plaignons sincerement les garcons qui comprennent leur metier honorable, et qui sont soumis aux caprices et aux plaintes injustes d'un public qui connait aussi peu qu'un vrai "rasta," la difference entre la cuisine francaise et la cuisine boarding-house.

Le meilleur parti pour le garcon qui se respecte c'est d'ignorer les discussions frivoles et les efforts plus ou moins honnetes qui ont pour but une economie mesquine, derisoire et impossible.

Les garcons qui connaissent leur affaire sont, en effet, les missionnaires de la civilization Europeenne. Ils apprennent peu a peu aux nouveaux riches l'art de manger et de boire. Ils sont precheurs de la vie saine et scientifique, les "advance agents" de la grande science culinaire qui prolongera la vie de l'homme. Ils apprendront aux Americans que le vin rouge vaut mieux que le whisky, et ils AURONT TOUJOURS LEUR POURBOIRE; car le nouveau riche n'est pas du tout sur de lui-meme; il craint son garcon comme il craint souvent son chauffeur. Il parlera contre le pourboire, mais il le payera, car il sait bien que ce paiement n'est que justice.

(Si vous ne voyez pas d'accents sur les mots ici, c'est que las accents, n'etant pas employes en Anglais, ne peuvent etre imprimes sur nos machines. Vous accepterez donc cet echantillon de Francais sans accents comme celui qui l'ecrit accepte quelques fois de vous des plats qui ne sont pas parfaits, sans plainte.)

"END SEAT HOG" IS BUSY AGAIN

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I am a stranger in Boston, and I have noted with admiration the unusual courtesy which prevails in unexpected places. But in one respect, I am sorry to say, the "end seat hog" is more ubiquitous in this city than in any other I have ever visited. I have been here one month, have done much travelling on the trolley cars, and I have not once seen a person move from the end seat in an open car to accommodate a new passenger—even when she is a very attractive woman.

The most flagrant case of this I noticed yesterday, when two well-dressed, apparently cultured men sat on the end seat and a very stout woman tried to get into the car. She would have had a difficult time if there was nobody on the seat. She had to squeeze past these two men. They would doubtless resent being called "hogs," but that is the apt, though inelegant, way of characterizing them.

Here is a chance for some well-meaning women's organization to accomplish a reform by education—teach every trolley car passenger to take the seat nearest the inside and leave the outside seats for new passengers.

THE PUBLIC HAS AN INTEREST, TOO

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The telegraph companies, I understand, expect to combat the new law compelling them to send the filing time of messages free of charge. They will have a good time doing it. They don't want to overlook the fact that the sender of messages has a vested right at stake. If I hand the telegraph company a ten-word message and the company seeks to charge me for a thirteen or fourteen word message because of the inclusion of the filing time, the company will have a fine time getting the money.

I advise you who telegraph to hand your ten-word messages to the telegraph clerk, pay for a ten-word message and if the company doesn't send it at that rate, you may take your case to the courts, and I will predict that you can recover all the damages you suffer.
